3 Held, Fourth Suspect Hunted In Wilson Death

Indictment of Killers May Be Requested Next Month.

'Mistake Murder' Was Plotted Here

Sutton, Gambler, Is in District Jail, Closely Guarded.

The baffling murder of Allen Wilson is so near to being solved, it was learned yesterday, that the grand jury of Montgomery County may be asked next month to indict the suspected killers.

Wilson, 32-year-old newspaper routeman, was shot down just over the line in Maryland on the morning of October 23, 1934, just after he had delivered a paper at the Takoma Park home of Edward (Mickey) McDonald, District gambler.

The "mistaken identity murder"—McDonald was supposed to have been the victim—was conceived in Washington, and that is why a special squad of local detectives has been co-operating with the Maryland authorities.

Fourth Suspect Sought.

Four men have been under suspicion, it is understood, and all but one are under arrest. An intensive search is being made for the fourth man.

Police yesterday, as on the day before, declined to discuss the case in any way. The report persisted, however, that a "break" was imminent.

Meantime, Albert S. Sutton, 35-year-old gambler, once described by police as "the most dangerous man in Washington," was being held incommunicado at the District Jail.

He was transferred here from Lorton Reformatory last week on the orders of United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett, who gave instructions that he was to be isolated from other prisoners and allowed to talk to no one but detectives.

Sutton was on parole here at the time of the Wilson murder, having been given his conditional liberty after serving 11 years of a 20-year sentence for robbery and assault with a deadly weapon.

Arrested in Reform Wave.

He was arrested during the reform wave that followed the Wilson murder, his parole was revoked and he was sent back to Lorton. The Parole Board took this action after hearing evidence tending to show that Sutton had returned to the underworld.

Police are now fairly certain that the four men responsible for the murder of Wilson played the following roles: Two as gunmen, who riddled the wrong man with bullets; one as a finger man to point out McDonald (he erred, too) and a contact man who hired the others.

State's Attorney James H. Pugh, of Montgomery County, who will prosecute the case if it gets into court, has been in Washington for several days recently, and it is believed that he has been conferring with the three Washington officers assigned to the murder—Lieut. John Fowler, Lieut. Floyd Truscott and Detective Earl Hartnett.

Mrs. Marshall Seeks Divorce

Wife of Laundry Owner, Sportsman, Charges Desertion.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Marshall, wife of George Preston Marshall, owner of the Palace Laundry and a close follower of professional sports, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to award her an absolute divorce on the ground of desertion.

Mrs. Marshall, who claimed the couple had entered into a separation agreement in 1929, said Marshall left her in 1928. Her suit asks custody of their two children, Catherine, 14, and George P. Marshall, jr., 10.

Marshall, erstwhile newspaper publisher, figured in news dispatches recently when a group headed by him sought to purchase an interest in the Boston Braves, National League baseball team. He now owns a professional football team in Boston and formerly a professional basketball team.

Body of Millionaire Found in N.Y. Swamp

Nyack, N. Y., Oct. 15 (AP).—Charles D. Towt, 76, millionaire, whose body was found today in a swampland, apparently died of a heart attack, Dr. J. W. Giles, coroner, said after an investigation. Towt disappeared from his Nyack home last May.

Dr. Giles said the elderly man probably suffered a heart attack as he walked along the edge of the swamp. The coroner found no evidence of foul play.

In Marital Tangle

MRS. ANNA COOKE NIXON.

Cooke-Nixon Tie Held Void By First Wife

Former 'Scandals' Girl to Seek Divorce From Captain Here Today.

The tumultuous marital affairs of Capt. Thomas Hay Nixon, Washington Army officer, and Annette Pauline Nixon, former "Scandals" actress, will be aired today in the District Supreme Court.

The actress is seeking an absolute divorce and alleges that a divorce obtained in Philadelphia by Capt. Nixon is invalid; that his recent marriage to Miss Anna Cooke, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard De Walden Cooke, of Chevy Chase, is invalid.

It was Anna Cooke Nixon who was stage manager for the elopement of her younger sister, Jane, 20, with George S. Scarlett, the family chauffeur. This romance ended a few days after the couple returned from their honeymoon.

In her petition for divorce, Mrs. Annette Nixon alleges cruelty and intoxication and charges that her husband frequently consorted with other women.

The Army ordnance officer, who is credited with invention of high-speed tanks, married Miss Cooke in Belfast, Me., August 30, a few weeks after he obtained his Philadelphia divorce from the first Mrs. Nixon.

In 1934, the first Mrs. Nixon, an attractive dark-haired actress and a member of a prominent Boston family, had her husband brought into court, charging that he had dragged her around a room by the hair. They then lived in the 3500 block of Macomb street northwest.

She also charged that he had threatened to import a gunman from Chicago to kill her and had

Helena, Mont., Oct. 15 (AP).—Classes at Intermountain College and a grade school here were dismissed today as the earth rocked and rumbled with the forty-fourth tremor since early Saturday.

Some damage was added to the toll of Saturday's shocks, felt generally over Western Montana, but there were no casualties.

Study Shows Age Replaces Youth in Jobs

Resources Board Finds Trend Toward Older Population.

Birth Rate Drop, Gain in Life Expectancy Pointed Out.

Now age will have its fling.

Youth must yield its domination and men and women past 60 are to rule.

So the National Resources Committee reported yesterday.

In only 25 years, if present trends continue, the United States' population will be stabilized, with twice as many of its citizens past the three-score mark than at present, and the number of young folk under 20 decreased in about the same proportion.

Quieter forms of recreation will replace the whoopee era, fewer primary educational facilities will be required, while the demand for continuing adult education will increase. And greater occupational trends are likely to take place.

The population trend was indicated by studies made by some of the State planning boards reported to the resources committee, and by Warren Thompson and P. K. Whelpton, of the Scripps Foundation for Research in Population Problems, who made a special study for the committee.

Drop in Birth Rate.

Increases in life expectancy and a decrease in the specific birth rate helped the researchers reach their conclusions.

The National Resources Committee is composed of Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Secretary of War Dern, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Secretary of Commerce Roper, Secretary of Labor Perkins, Emergency Relief Administrator Hopkins, Frederic A. Delano, Charles E. Merriam and Wesley C. Mitchell. Its function is to prepare for the President "a program and plan of procedure dealing with the physical, social, governmental and economic aspects of public policies for the development and use of land, water and other national resources."

It was created by executive order last June, replacing the National Resources Board which had been created under the NRA act. Members are appointed by the President. The committee's statement yesterday said an extended report on State planning is being prepared for release within a few weeks.

Findings in Studies.

"Discovery of these population probabilities by research workers," the committee said yesterday, "is based on the continuance of present immigration laws and present trends. Summarized, the studies indicate:

1. That the population of the United States will become stabilized about 1960.

2. That future population distribution will depend in large measure upon the development of the country's natural and industrial resources.

3. That during the next 25 years the proportion of the population over 60 years of age will be approximately doubled.

4. That the number of young people under 20 years will decrease in about the same amount as those over 60 will increase.

5. That occupational characteristics of the population will change and that as the mechanization of agriculture and industry increases, opportunity for employment in such new fields as education, conservation, rec-

Ship Sunk; 27 Rescued.

Brest, France, Oct. 15 (AP).—Twenty-seven members of the crew of 30 of the French schooner Les Deux Freres were rescued by coastwise vessels today after the ship sank in the Atlantic. A search was under way tonight for the three missing sailors, believed to be adrift in a lifeboat.

Widow, Twice Wed, Admits Plot To Wed to Kill, to Kill to Wed

By the Associated Press.

Kansas City, Oct. 15.—A blonde, widowed cook, with amazing matrimonial intentions, slumped repentant in a jail cell tonight while police examined the ingredients of this asserted concoction:

A plan to wed a pool-hall operator as her third husband.

Pay $50 to have him killed.

Use his presumed estate to pay for the slaying of a street car operator's wife.

Then—Marry the street car operator with whom she told police she became so enamored that she rode in his street car just to look at him.

"I must have been crazy," moaned 34-year-old Mrs. Lottie Crumley, discussing the plot Detective John Bayliss said she detailed to him.

"I had no intention of marrying her," said the pool-hall operator whose late wife was nursed in her fatal illness by Mrs. Crumley.

"Neither did I," echoed the street car operator, who asserted his present 12-year-old marriage remained a happy one and that Mrs. Crumley was "a pest."

"For a long time my only pleasure had been to ride on his street car," Mrs. Crumley said, "often from one end of the line to the other. I would just sit and admire him."

Thomas J. Higgins, chief of police detectives, said Mrs. Crumley would not be released before tomorrow morning. He added, however, that she appeared to be innocent of any overt act.

Mrs. Crumley, mother of a 12-year-old son, said the street car operator "told me repeatedly he would marry me if it weren't for his wife." He denied it.

Names of the motorman and the pool-hall man were withheld. Mrs. Crumley was arrested yesterday after a man told police she offered him $50 to kill the pool-hall operator as soon as he became her husband.

Jilted Man Is Held In Murder of Bride

Annie O'Bannon, 17, shown at the inquest yesterday when she charged W. H. Reaguer had forced her and Mrs. Willie Mae Wood to accompany him to the Houston Hotel, where Mrs. Wood was subsequently slain.

Inquest Hears Killing in Hotel Here Described as 'Defense' Act.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

A driving rain beat against the windshield. The light coupe jolted and careened along unfamiliar country roads—Mrs. Willie Mae Wood, 21-year-old bride of three weeks, was riding to her death.

And yesterday, in the District Morgue, sordid details of a revolting crime came from the trembling lips of a young schoolgirl and William H. Reaguer, 46, Culpeper (Va.) undertaker, was charged with murder.

It was the story of a middle-age man's mad infatuation for a pretty girl he had courted and wooed until her marriage to a young highway engineer. It was the story of secret trysts and a final rendezvous in the Houston Hotel early Saturday.

In a ninth floor room, with an open jack-knife beside her partly decapitated body, lay the body of Willie Mae at the end of a night of terror. When investigators crashed through the bolted door, Reaguer, his left arm and wrist slashed, lay by her side, his head resting on her bloody shoulder.

Jury Acts Quickly.

When the story was finished—after nearly four hours of testimony—it took a coroner's jury but a few moments to decide that Reaguer, one of Culpeper's most respected citizens, should face the grand jury on charges of murder.

Events preceding the hotel tragedy—a wild ride in the rain, threats at the point of a loaded shotgun, screams in the dark, cries for mercy—were detailed to the jury by a pale, nervous schoolgirl, Annie Thomas O'Bannon, 17, Willie Mae's blonde cousin.

On the eve of her death, Willie Mae had left her home in Fairfax, Va.—where she lived with her bridegroom husband, Herbert R. Wood, employed by the Virginia State roads commission—and had gone to visit her family in Culpeper.

Her mother, Mrs. Dolores Fletcher, an aunt and Cousin Annie had driven to Washington to see about purchasing an automobile. They brought Willie Mae back with them. Her husband knew nothing of the trip.

Starts Quarrel.

It was shortly before the scheduled return that Reaguer appeared. Cousin Annie, who lives at 1361 Fairmont street northwest, decided to go to Washington with Willie Mae. They missed the bus. Reaguer volunteered to accompany them in his car.

But he was still angered at Willie Mae's marriage. The two quarreled violently before the return trip to Washington started. Reaguer had been drinking. Willie Mae was to drive. Before they left, Reaguer insisted in taking a loaded shotgun along. The girls consented, humoring his drunken desire for "protection."

Darkness had settled over the countryside as the trio began the long drive—the last they were to take together. On the highway toward Washington, Reaguer again sought to quarrel. With Willie Mae behind the steering wheel, he re-

5 & 10 Countess Admits She's Awaiting Stork

Paris, Oct. 15 (AP).—The former Barbara Hutton is to have a baby, she disclosed today, but she does not know whether it will be born in the United States or in France.

"Yes, it's true," said the 22-year-old Countess Haughwitz-Reventlow as she was being fitted for a new wardrobe. "I expect a baby by the end of February or early in March, but I am not yet decided whether the baby will be born here or in America.

Mexicans Arm To Start Hunt For Guerrillas

Five Americans Seized by Raiding Band Believed Safe.

By the Associated Press.

Magdalena, Mex., Oct. 15.—Troops, planes and hastily armed civilians organized tonight against hard-riding Mexican raiders.

Five prominent American business men on a hunting trip were believed safe, after having been reported in the hands of the rebels.

Apprehension spread in the border district, however, because of the fear of further raids. Five persons already had fallen before rebel guns. Moreover, the raiders had seized the town of Santa Ana—100 miles from the border and only a short distance south of here.

Reports concerning the Americans, on a hunting trip, were that they had been seized and disarmed. Word came from several sources today that they were freed unhurt.

Federal soldiers and armed citizens patrolled Magdalena because of a report the raiders were in the hills near here. A squadron of military planes joined the search.

All municipalities in this district doubled their guards and armed private citizens against the possibility of surprise attacks.

A constant guard at the Arizona National Guard Armory in the border town of Nogales was ordered by Adjt. Gen. Oscar Temple, State militia commander.

"Keep a close watch on the armory," he ordered, "those revolters need arms badly."

The main raiding band of about 80 raiders was reported composed of farmers and ranchers opposing the Mexican government's religious and agrarian policies.

Hull Joins With Hoare to End 'Underlying' War Causes.

Heads of Foreign Affairs in U. S. and Britain Join in Program.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Urging international co-operation to promote world peace, Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday proposed, as a step in that direction, simultaneous agreement by all nations to assure distribution of major raw materials on reasonable terms.

Thus Hull took up and indorsed the thesis projected before the League of Nations Assembly a month ago by Sir Samuel Hoare, British secretary of foreign affairs, when the latter made a grim effort to dissuade Italy from invading Ethiopia.

The necessity for raw materials by countries that do not possess them and the fear that those countries with natural resources will set up exclusive monopolies in these essentials has been held time and again to be at the bottom of much of the political unrest in the world at this time.

Sir Samuel proposed an investigation of methods of assuring better distribution and utilization of raw materials to the end that industrial countries requiring them might no longer fear exclusion and monopoly, and pledged his government to co-operate "in any collective attempt to deal in a fair, effective way with the problem that is certainly troubling many people at present and may trouble them even more in the future."

Hull Backs Hoare.

The significance of Secretary Hull's speech yesterday was that he took a stand alongside of that of Sir Samuel Hoare in urging a common front in attacking this fundamental problem, thus uniting in a common endeavor the two foremost democracies and nations in the world.

Speaking from here by radio to the New York Herald-Tribune forum on current affairs, the American spokesman for foreign affairs summarized in three points his program for correcting the maladjustments of the world without resort to the "obsolete and blood-stained instruments" of war.

"The nations can and must," he

Italy's Silence Dims Laval Peace Hopes

Report He Asked British to Withdraw Fleet Denied.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Oct. 15.—The hope Premier Pierre Laval has held steadfastly for an Italo-Ethiopian peace grew fainter today as he awaited Mussolini's terms for calling off his legions in Africa, officials said.

Simultaneously the foreign office made an official denial of a report that the premier had requested Great Britain to withdraw its battleships from the Mediterranean.

"Pure imagination," was the foreign office spokesman's characterization of the report.

By the United Press.

Rome, Oct. 15.—The government spokesman asserted tonight that press reports abroad that Premier Pierre Laval and Italian Ambassador Vittorio Cerutti are negotiating for solution of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute are "wholly foundationless."

Brazil May Reduce Army.

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 15 (AP).—Despite the fact that virtually every important world power is increasing its armaments, the finance commission of the chamber of deputies today approved a slash in Brazil's standing army. The proposal would remove 3,000 men from the army, leaving it at 65,162, in an effort to save about $300,000 in the 1936 budget.

British Navy Plays War Games Off Suez; Egypt Chaffs at Yoke

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Alexandria, Egypt, Oct. 15.—Admiral Sir William Fisher, sole dictator of Egypt's first line of defense, today directed the biggest naval maneuvers yet held off the shores of the ancient kingdom as Egyptian politicians intensified their violent protests against being "tied to Great Britain's apron strings."

While the political situation was rapidly drawing to a head, with Premier Tewfik Nessim Pasha described in the press as the "puppet and tool of Britain" for not insisting on Egypt's right to speak for itself in the matter of sanctions against Italy, Admiral Fisher took out the British capital ships for the first time to participate in combined maneuvers with smaller craft.

The maneuvers were held off the coast between Alexandria and Port Said, at the north end of the Suez Canal, in an area naval experts said would be Italy's first objective in event of closing of the canal.

It was believed the men-of-war would put back into port Friday, but this apparently was based only on the fact that previous smaller weekly maneuvers had always ended that day.

(Foreign military quarters in London expressed the belief today that the fleet will be kept indefinitely in the vicinity of Suez and Gibraltar, following unexplained cancellation of the cruise to Greek waters.

(The British government has declined to conform to suggestions in the French press that the fleet be withdrawn from the Mediterranean and similar requests from Italy. London observers said there was no reason why almost the whole fleet should not remain in the Mediterranean as long as Europe is quiet.

(London reports said ships are being moved from the Mediterranean into the Red Sea and others from the home fleet are going to Planes Pound Strategic Points of Ethiopia as Troops Mass.

Prepare to Strike At Railroad Outlet

150,000 Fresh Soldiers to Pass Through Addis Ababa This Week.

By the Associated Press.

Addis Ababa, Oct. 15.—Italian bombing planes swooped over strategic sections of Ethiopia today while Emperor Haile Selassie rallied his wild tribesmen to the defense of the empire.

Bombs were dropped by Fascist planes on Alaji, near Makale, and on troops at Makale, 60 miles south of Aduwa, an official communique said. It asserted there were no casualties.

Ethiopians also announced scouting planes had passed over Gota, on the railroad to Djibouti, French Somaliland, between Diredawa and Awash. Still other of Premier Mussolini's planes roared low over Harar, and nearly the entire populace, badly frightened, fled into the hills or to Diredawa.

To Strike at Railroad.

This aerial activity indicated the Italians were preparing to strike at the strategic town of Makale and at the railroad, Ethiopia's only outlet to the sea.

A shipment of 30,000 foreign rifles arrive at Jijiga today, following the action of the League of Nations in lifting an embargo against this country.

While the Italian planes struck fear in the border sections, Haile Selassie sent out huge contigents of warriors to key points to meet expected Italian attacks from both the north and the south.

150,000 Fresh Troops Due.

More than 150,000 fresh troops, it was said in official circles, will pass through the capital this week en route to the fronts for review by the Emperor.

They include 50,000 under Ras Mulugueta, minister of war and commander in chief of the northern forces, which arrived today; 35,000 under Ras Getatcho Abata, Governor of Kaffa; 40,000 commanded by Dedpazmatch Habte Mariam, Governor of Lekeppti Province, and 30,000 led by Bitwoded Mokonnen Demissie, Governor of Wallega Province and Haile Selassie's nephew.

Although these warriors are fierce fighters, many never heard of tanks, airplanes, the League of Nations or America.

When the warriors of Ras Mulugueta arrived they were astonished to see white men, and apparently classed all of them with Italians.

Chieftains reproved the men when they attempted to molest for-

Ethiopian Southern Army Headquarters, near Jijiga, via Djibouti, Oct. 15.—Ethiopian troops have started a "general attack" on Gen. Rodolpho Graziani's columns invading Ogaden Province from Italian Somaliland, Dedjazmatch Nassibou, commanding Emperor Haile Selassie's southern armies, announced today.

The decision to attack following a conference of black chieftains at Nassibou's rude, white-washed headquarters here, and formal charges, including a report to Emperor Haile Selassie by an American medical missionary of Italian atrocities.

The general attack order apparently does not mean any mass offensive by the Ethiopians but rather an intensification of their guerrilla tactics and a determination to hold front-line fortified positions, such as those around Garrahai—about 200 miles to the southeast—with every resource at their command.

To Continue Guerrilla War.

All the chieftains who attended the defense conference seemed confident that the Italian advance from the south can be retarded indefinitely by a continuation of the guerrilla tactics.

The first panicky fear caused by Italian air raids and alleged chemical attacks seems to have disappeared.

Nassibou ordered the general offensive at 4 p. m. yesterday. Runners immediately were dispatched

Navy Plane Sets Non-Stop Mark

Flies 3,387 Miles From Panama to Alameda With 6 Aboard.

By the Associated Press.

Alameda, Calif., Oct. 15.—The Navy's new patrol plane XP3Y-1 alighted today at 2:15 p. m. (5:15 Eastern standard time) after a record-breaking nonstop flight of 3,387 miles from Panama.

The plane last week flew from Norfolk, Va., to Coco Solo, Canal Zone.

The big seaplane came down on the water after its long journey, made in approximately 35 hours.

The crew, led by Commander Knefler McGinnis, taxied the craft about and prepared to come ashore.

Navy officers explained the "X" in the monoplane's number meant it was an experimental ship, the first of 60 such craft the Navy is purchasing.

"We came through all kinds of flying weather," said Commander McGinnis, "and the plane performed perfectly."

McGinnis declined to say at what altitude the plane flew and would not disclose other details of the flight, saying the information had not yet been given to Navy officials.

A crew of six men was aboard. Besides Commander McGinnis, those making the flight were Lieut. J. K. Aberill, Navy Air Pilot Thomas P. Wilkinson, Chief Machinist Charles S. Bolka, and Chief Radiomen A. E. Dionne and E. V. Sizer.

reation and service occupations will increase.

In addition to the ascendancy of age over youth and the quieter life likely to result, the State boards and other investigators dealt with changes in population distribution, land values, living standards, and employment.

Under a stabilized population, neither increasing nor decreasing, the committee statement said "the New York State Planning Board believes that the State should be able o plan more wisely, that public improvement and development should suffer less from uncontrolled real estate speculation, and that the State should be better able to utilize its natural and financial resources.

"A statonary population demands a stabilized agriculture, according to the Iowa State planning board report, for then land values will rise less rapidly, if at all, and there would be less need for the exploitation of natural resources.

"The Kansas board points out that a stationary population means that it will be necessary to raise living standards in order to create new markets and establish a more secure social future.

"The distribution of population will be largely dependent on the development of basic land uses. According to the Iiowa board, Federal public works undertakings—the building of dams, power developments and recreational areas—are admirably suited to drawing people away from regions where opportunity is declining. It is suggested, for this method of population distribution, that preference for employment be gven to workers from areas of surplus population, and that public works be undertaken in apparently promising areas, so that their opulations may be retained.

"The changes in the numbers within the old and young age groups will require adjustments in public services. The Ohio Board predicts these changes: (1) the demand for primary education facilities will decrease, while that for continuing adult education increases; (2) the demand for goods consumed by older people will grow and the demand for goods consumed by younger people will decrease; (3) the present tendency in industry to reduce the age limit of employes will require modification; (4) the old-age pension problems will become more serious (5) more active types of recreation will give way to quieter types, and (6) it is probable that youth will lose influence in both Government and business.

"Since changes in the use of natural resources have always caused occupational changes, it is likely that occupational trends may vary more in the next three decades than they have in the past, according to the report of the Wisconsin Planning Board."

Far West Cool to Far East 'Menace;' Manchukuo a White Elephant; Young G. O. P. Flexible.

By Raymond Clapper

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—An unexpected discovery on the Pacific Coast is that there is not the fear of Japan that is found in the East. The Pacific Coast knows more about Japan than the East. Perhaps that is the reason that the intelligent business men on the western slope take Japan for granted.

Their information is that Japan has been disappointed in the Manchukuo adventure, is finding it an economic liability instead of an asset, and is now preparing to push southward toward the Yangtze valley as an early objective.

Ultimately Japanese policy, as understood on the Coast, is to work southward toward Indo-China. Close economic and cultural relations are being developed with Siam. The general view here is that Japan is overextending herself and is frantically pursuing a pyramiding policy which rests on an inadequate base.

An instance of the information which comes to West Coast business men concerning the Japanese situation is one memorandum from a confidential source in the Far East. All that can be said concerning the source is that it is a competent one friendly to Japanese interests. The reason that it cannot be divulged will be obvious.

This memorandum, in substance, reports the following as the condition up to less than one month ago:

There is still a general financial depression in Japan, although the situation has been considerably improved because of prosperity in certain industries, especially war industries and export businesses. The influence of military leaders still is strong, although the public is awakening to realization that it has been misled by military propaganda. However, the nationalistic movement is robust, although shifting somewhat from a basis of militarism to an economic nationalism.

The greatest change concerns the attitude in Japan toward Manchukuo. A year ago a majority of the Japanese people placed great hope in the economic and industrial possibilities of that country. This hope has been replaced by skepticism. Businessmen and private capital have come to the conclusion that although the natural resources of Manchukuo are rich they cannot easily be expolited because of the influence of the military.

Plans of a year ago for establishing new industries there and opening up resources have materialized. Rich resources are too far from railways. Plans for erecting industrial plants conflicted with the interests of factories in Japan.

Manchukuo has become a serious financial problem. The territorial government says its condition is sound, but its defense budget is borne by Japan, at a cost of hundreds of millions of yen per year. Railway construction, road building and public works are progressing, but the program is being planned by the army and military considerations rather than economic requirements control. Thus new lines built in Manchukuo are not paying because they were put down in districts where there is no prospect for economic development. The Manchukuo government's financial condition has depreciated its yen. A year ago its yen was worth about 1.40 of the Japanese yen. Today it is worth only one Japanese yen. There is fear that it will drop below parity.

This has placed the South Manchurian Railway in a difficult position, financially. It is spending about 200,000,000 yen a year on new construction, subsidizing new industries and aiding cultural development. Construction plans are made by the Manchukuo government. But having no funds it orders the South Manchurian Railway to do the building, finance construction and operate the lines for the government. But since these lines are not economically sound, Japanese bankers are hestitating to advance money to the railway company. The company's debentures, once regarded as the best investment in Japan, are difficult to dispose of now that banking support is lacking. Shares of the company have declined.

In addition the low price of soy beans has borne down on the farmers and numbers of them are turning to banditry to make a living.

* * * *

Knowing of these difficulties, the Pacific Coast is far calmer toward the Japanese problem than the East, where there is still a tendency to regard the Japanese as a kind of superrace, capable of miraculous achievements. Probably this is due in part to the fact that a nation must have great ability even to survive at all under the conditions fixed upon the Japanese people. The informed business man here is confident that Japan has embarked on a program of expansion which is beyond its basic ability to sustain and he is therefore complacent. He is more interested at the moment in developing complementary trade with Japan, fitting mutual needs together, than in worrying about the threat of a rising empire in the Far East.

Young Republicans out here have such a flexible age limit it has practically no ceiling—that their Democrat friends define a young Republican as anyone who was too young to fight in the Civil War.

Man Held on Charge Of Brandishing Pistol

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., Oct. 15.—Edward Wilhide, of near Rouzerville, was in the Franklin County jail today in default of $4,000 bond after allegedly attempting to kill several persons at a Rouzerville filling station Sunday night. According to officers Wilhide bandished a revolver in the business place.

Brought before C. S. Kugler, justice of the peace, he pleaded guilty to charges of drunkenness, disorderly conduct and on carrying concealed and deadly weapons.

asserted, "simultaneously endeavor to facilitate the movement of trade between them, to find their way back to stable monetary relations, an dto agree upon the organization and principles which will assure that all important raw materials will become available on reasonable terms wherever they are needed."

Sir Samuel, speaking on the same program by radio from London, referred to his Geneva speech of September 12 in which, he said, he tried to look beyond the range of immediate political difficulties—the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel—and to consider how the causes of bitterness and strife could be removed.

"Looking to the future," he asserted, "I selected the question of the control and distribution of colonial raw materials as one of these causes and I suggested that it would be well to anticipate possible controversy by examining it without unnecessary delay."

Believing that "we tend to pay too much attention to the political situation of the moment and that we give too little thought to underlying economic troubles of which political problems are in many cases the immediate symptom," Sir Samuel said he would like to carry the ideas he expressed on raw materials "int oa wider field"—to the lowering of barriers to international trade, which he termed "one of the most fundamental tasks of the present time."

the Mediterranean. A speech by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, was interpreted as meaning the grand fleet will not be moved out of the Mediterranean for a long time.)

Egypt Press Attacks League.

The Egyptian Press vigorously attacked the League of Nations' sanctions program as well as the Premier. Siyasa, an independent paper, declared:

"Egypt, conscious of the dignity of the country, considers the present government, which surrendered its affairs and those of the country to the British, as the greatest catastrophe which has overtaken Egypt since the great war.

"Egyptians will not refuse Britain's friendship or an alliance with it, but they refuse to be in the situation of a state needing to be defended by Britain and refuse to admit that Britain speaks in their name."

The papers said Egyptians "refuse to participate in sanctions" with Great Britain without knowing at least what will be Egypt's fate in the future.

Admiral Virtual Dictator.

With the Egyptian Parliament and constitution suspended, Admiral Fisher became what was tantamount to a virtual dictator in Egypt's destinies in the present crisis.

Well-informed quarters said he has full rein in arranging defense measures, and civic authorities are paying the most strict heed to his admiralty recommendations.

Egyptians had been pleased by obtaining the right to increase their army, but the question of co-operation with Britain is now further complicated by the sanctions questions.

The maneuvers brought a spell of dullness to business in Alexandria, which had been reaping a rich harvest from the estimated 25,000 bluejackets. Only about 53 war vessels remained in the harbor today, with about thirty believed participating in the maneuvers. Most of the large vessels which had been jammed into the harbor left during the night and morning.

with the command to attack to all field leaders in the front-line areas far to the southeast.

Earlier in the day scouts had reported that the Italian invaders ahd gained only 20 kilometers along the Ogaden front after 11 days of their mechanized attack, during which airplanes dropped thousands of bombs.

Morale Continues High.

The morale of the Ethiopian troops continued high and it was indicated their successful resistance in the extreme front lines had given everyone new confidence. So successful has been the initial Ethiopian resistance that Nassibou believed his long-talked-of "decisive battle" will be delayed indefinitely. He still insists he will not throw his reserves into action until the Italians reach more favorable ground, nearer Jijiga.

Meanwhile, airplanes from Assab, 300 miles north of here in Italian Eritrea, reconnoitered the Issa territory, causing another air raid scare in Harar. The city was calm, however, in decided contrast with the panic of the last scare—when the whole town, including the army and police force, fled wildly into the hills.

Careful instructions were given the people after the scare last week and they proved effective. Motor trucks ready to depart for the advance lines, laden with soldiers and their women and equipment, were rolled under trees. The people, under guidance of the police, ran in orderly fashion into their shelters.

"Gass Bomb" Exhibited.

Col. Atou Ambay, an officer attached to Nassibou's staff, reached Harar yesterday morning from the Ogaden front with a 100-pound "gas bomb he exhibited at the government palace and which was photographed for the Ethiopian delegation in Geneva and the foreign press.

I saw the bomb and there appeared no question but that it was charged with gas. Whether the gas is poison will be established when the bomb is examined at Addis Ababa.

Adding to charges of Italian atrocities, Dr. Robert W. Hockman, of Wheaton, Ill., who is in charge of the Red Cross Hospital here, formally reported that he has examined Ethiopian soldiers who have been shot by airplane machine-gunners who harassed the Ethiopian positions around Garrahai last week. Hockman said a careful examination of the wounds showed the bullets had been flattened on their tips in violation of the accepted rules of civilized warfare.

Hockman said he was forwarding photographic proof of the atrocities to Emperor Haile Selassie in Addis Ababa.

High Casualties Scouted.

Hockman, 29, a Presbyterian missionary, has been in Ethiopia two years, following his graduation from Northwestern University Medical School.

All reports on the casualties the Ethiopians have suffered in Ogaden are mere speculation. The Ethiopian army units are so disorganized, from an American point of view, the methods of communication and checking so crude, and the liaison between the units at the front so poor, that Nassibou himself has little idea of what losses his men have suffered.

My guess would be that Ethiopian casualties have not been great, for they are not fighting in mass formation and there appears to have been little hand-to-hand combat. From what I can learn the Ethiopians rapidly are learning how to avoid air bombings—just as the Chinese did in the campaigns around Shanghai and in JeJhol—and the futility of attempting to charge machine guns.

Upper Potomac Board Is Upheld in Opinion

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 15.—In an opinion signed by Assistant Attorney General Charles T. LeViness, the act of the Maryland Legislature creating the Upper Potomac River Commission is declared constitutional and the commissioners named by Gov. Harry W. Nice were ruled legally appointed.

The opinion was given at the request of Mayor George W. Legge, commission chairman. The commission has jurisdiction over the upper Potomac River district, created in connection with plans for the proposed Savage River impounding dam. Application has been made to have the project financed by the Federal Government under War Department supervision. Mayor Legge had been advised that the Federal officials were doubtful of the constitutionality of the State act.

Fredericik Will Award Sewer Contract Soon

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 15.—The first contract for construction of part of a million-dollar sewage system will be awarded on or before December 1, City Engineer Elmer St. C. Maxwell said today. A check for $52,500 was received yesterday by the city from the Federal Government as an advance on the $452,295 PWA grant.

The city will delay selling bonds as long as possible, Mayor Lloyd C. Culler said, obviating payment of interest on idle money. The money received yesterday will cover the expense of engineering work, which has been under way several weeks.

eigners, some jamming rifle butts against the visitors' automobiles. Haile Selassie has sternly admonished the warriors not to harm white men here.

Haile Selassie Gugsa, northern chieftain, who has taken his northern tribe over to the Italian cause, has been condemned as a traitor. Ethiopians said Mussolini is spending huge sums in attempts to bribe Ethiopian chieftains.

Spokesmen for the government claim the invaders are bombing Gerlogubi, in the south, killing women and children.

Ethiopia now is massing the greatest army in its history in an attempt to repel the Fascists. Emperor Haile Selassie ordered the huge mobilization in an attempt to retake the holy city of Aksum after weeping openly when he heard of its fall.

Addis Ababa, Oct. 15 (U.P.).—Taking his first relaxation in weeks, Emperor Haile Selassie motored with a few companions to a forest 5 miles outside the capital today and practiced target shooting. He smilingly straddled an ancient 37-millimeter Hotchkiss mountain gun, once the Emperor Menelik's, and demonstrated exceptional marksmanship.

Sighting the gun himself, while his pet white dog wagged his tail approvingly, the Negus fired one shot to get the range and then planted six in succession in the exact center of the target. He was firing at a slab of rock about 25 by 100 feet in size, 1,500 yards distant, high on a mountain side. He seemed in good spirits.

Tax Increase Faced If Sewer Bonds Win

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leesburg, Va., Oct. 15.—An increase in the tax rate of 75 cents on $100 assessed valuation of property, making the total rate $1.60, will be necessary if Leesburg votes a bond issue to finance a sewer and disposal plant, it was brought out at a meeting of the town council last night.

The cost of the proposed system is estimated at $141,000. Forty-five per cent, or $63,000, would be a grant from the PWA. The bond issue will cover $77,500 of the cost of the project. The tax increase would extend over a period of 20 years. The Rust Engineering Co., of Washington, made the preliminary survey and will have charge of the work if the bond issue is carried.

Inquest Orders Reaguer Held As Girl's Slayer

Culpeper Man to Be Tried in Murder Here of Young Bride of Rival.

buked her for marrying Wood, then in the next breath told of his love.

The undertaker's foggy mind concocted a scheme. He decided they should drive to Reno. There, he said, Willie Mae could divorce her husband, he could divorce his wife and they could be married. He bolstered his idea with threats—telling them he would use the shotgun if they attempted to trick him and drive to Washington.

At every turn in the highway he reminded them what he would do if they didn't comply with his orders. Willie Mae became lost. It started to rain. The car skidded and swayed along the road. The girls were terror stricken. Then they stopped at a gas station. Cousin Annie talked to the attendant and in whispers learned the right road to Washington.

As they neared the city, with Reaguer still repeating his threats, the girls became desperate, but just as suddenly as he had concocted the idea, Reaguer forgot it. He agreed to take the girls to a hotel and return home in the morning.

New Threats.

They refused. He again started threatening. At Eleventh and E streets northwest they parked the car. Reaguer left the shotgun inside and all three went to the Houston Hotel. They registered under the names of "H. L. Thomas and party, Richmond, Va." Reaguer insisted that the hotel register be signed by Cousin Annie. They took adjoining rooms.

For a few minutes they went into Reaguer's room. Willie Mae wanted to take a bath. Reaguer said she must take it in his bathroom. Cousin Annie, while Willie Mae was bathing, started to write a letter. Reaguer stopped her. He wanted to talk to Willie Mae alone. Cousin Annie went to her room and, exhausted, fell asleep.

She was awakened some time later by a piercing scream. It came from Reaguer's room. Soon there were policemen and physicians in the hallway outside—Willie Mae was dead.

James C. Van Story, manager of the hotel, told of receiving a call and hurrying to the Reaguer room. After repeated knocks, Van Story said, Reaguer opened the door. Then police were called and when he again went to the room, Reaguer was lying on the floor, his arm and wrists slashed, Van Story concluded.

On the floor between Willie Mae and Reaguer was an open jackknife. One blade had been broken. The other was blood-stained. One apparently had broken as the young woman's neck was hacked and cut to the base of her body. Her head was almost severed. Her face was slashed. Her arms bore deep gashes. The room showed evidences of a terrific struggle.

As the inquest neared an end, a "surprise" witness was called. It was Policeman Charles Burnett, of the First Precinct, assigned to guard Reaguer at Gallinger Hospital. Burnett told of a statement made by the injured man as he lay in bed. Reaguer didn't know Burnett was a policeman.

Quotes Defendant.

"We (Willie Mae and Reaguer) went to bed together," he was quoted as saying. "About 4 a. m. she said she would rather die than argue all night. Then she got up and took a pitcher from the bureau. She struck me with it. I looked on the bed and saw a knife she had taken from my pants pocket. When I picked it up, she jumped at me. Then I cut her."

Other witnesses, however, testified that the pitcher had not been moved.

Clad in black, speaking hardly above a monotone, Mrs. Fletcher, Willie Mae's mother, took the stand. She said Reaguer had been "going around with my daughter since she was 17." Mrs. Fletcher said she often warned Willie Mae not to see Reaguer because he was a married man.

Reaguer, Mrs. Fletcher continued, had offered to buy her a new car if she would "break up" the marriage of Willie Mae and Wood. It was hinted that the trip to Washington when Willie Mae was picked up had something to do with the new car purchase.

Throughout the inquest, Reaguer sat beside his attorney, James O'Shea. He picked his teeth. He hung his head. He sneered.

Once, when his daughter, Margaret, 18, told how he used the shotgun to threaten Willie Mae and her prospective husband as they sat in the garage of the Culpeper home, Reaguer dropped his head and held it between his hands.

Bridegroom Wood testified he knew of his wife's "affair" with Reaguer, but said that she had promised never to mention it after their marriage. He said he knew Reaguer was bitterly jealous.

Willie Mae was buried in Culpeper yesterday, soon after the inquest.

Miners' Pay Raised $1,800,000 a Year

New Scale Negotiated in Southwest Virginia.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Norton, Va., Oct. 15.—Southwest Virginia coal miners will have approximately $1,800,000 more money to spend in the next 12 months than during the last year under a new wage scale following the recent strike settlement. Miners are assured 20 cents additional for every ton of coal.

The 12 months ended April 1 were reported as the best in six years in the Virginia coal fields.

Domestic coal already is quoted at from 25 to 50 cents a ton higher because of the new wage scale, but domestic coal is only about 30 per cent of the total coal production. The rest goes to railroads, steel mills, textile mills, automobile manufacturers and other industries.

HOT? IT'S A BALL OF FIRE!

The Buick SPECIAL, series-40, four-door Sedan—93-horsepower, 118-inch wheelbase $885
list price at Flint. All Buick prices include safety glass throughout as standard equipment

Production of the new Buicks accords with the joint program of Government, labor and industry to spread employment more evenly throughout the year

HERE you see illustrated in action the stunning and spirited new Buick SPECIAL—and very special you'll find it indeed!

The motorwise in the trade who previewed its performance habitually use the word phenomenal to describe it.

That may tell you how it performs, as your eye tells you how it looks, but only long years can tell you how very good it really is.

We'll advise you in advance, that it's the nimblest, smoothest, liveliest, steadiest, safest, most satisfying carrier of high-power energy that ever thrilled an appreciative traveler!

The Special is fingertip light to handle, in traffic or at speed, but it has none of that rubbery pulpy jumpiness that keeps you tense and on the alert in many cars.

That's because it's engineered firm—fitted part to part with sound micrometer precision—throughout every inch and detail of its deep-framed durable Buick-engineered chassis.

When you give it a shot of gas and it's turning up its steady even-keeled speed, it seems to settle even closer to the road, a paragon of stability as it reels off its thrifty miles.

And when you kick it open on take-offs it gets away instanter! without pause or delayed gathering of power before its spurt.

No use trying to picture the Special in words, it's so different from anything you're used to—the practical thing is to get behind that wheel yourself.

Then you'll know the difference between the engineering of yesterday and of tomorrow, and your amaze will be that the phenomenal Special can be sold at a price so low.

YOU CAN AFFORD THE NEW BUICK

List prices range from $765 to $1045 at Flint, Mich., subject to change without notice. Standard and special accessory groups on all models at extra cost. All Buick prices include Safety Glass throughout as standard equipment. Convenient GMAC time payment plan.

Dainty Sachets Back in Favor In Many Hues

Perfumes Come in Dozens of Fragrances and Hundreds of Styles.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

THE PENDULUM has swung again. The little sachets which grandmother regarded as dainty necessities to perfume her dresser drawer are back in favor. And in a big way!

They come now in literally dozens of fragrances and hundreds of styles. They range from the small 5 cents scented squares to real works of art like those now shown in a downtown store.

These deserve honorable mention. They are cleverly fabricated balls covered with a spinning of silk and filled to the brim with a rare, rich, luxurious perfume. Their particular charm lies in the fact that when they're tumbled into the lingerie drawer they roll about of their own accord. When you lift a piece of underwear out there is a general shifting of position and the scent is distributed instead of remaining in one spot.

These exquisite perfume balls come in several pastel shades arranged in a round white and gold box. You may buy them all of one shade or in a rainbow assortment.

Special in Playing Cards.

IMAGINE buying two decks of cards for 79 cents! And yet that's just what you can do in a downtown store. The cards are lovely. They're edged in the classic Etruscan pattern and come in a variety of contrasting colors.

Practical Paper Towels.

THE practical housekeeper knows what domestic blessings paper towels are. She can use them for drying the dishes, blotting up grease, drying her hands and any number of other ways.

Now she may buy these towels, together with a wall roller for dispensing them easily, for only 29 cents.

Reversible Coats.

BOTH windproof and rainproof is that ideal sports coat featured in a downtown store. Surveying it from one side you'd vow and declare it was one of the best looking sports model tweed coats you'd ever set eyes on. The tailored lapels, small turn-back collar, the very feel of the imported tweed send you into ecstasies.

But—view it from the other side, and there is a nifty gabardine raincoat, perfectly tailored.

Those of you who have owned reversible coats know what joys they are.

Those of you who haven't have an excellent chance to find out. If you have thought that probably such coats would be a bit bulky and lacking in style by all means see the model displayed in this shop.

It comes in natural or chestnut colored gabardine and in brown, tan and beige tweed, or almost any other color combination you prefer.

Long-Lasting Lipstick.

LOOKING for a lipstick in a crowded dresser drawer is often like the proverbial search for a needle in a haystack. Not so, however, with the new model put out by a certain cosmetic concern.

This lipstick is outrageously large! Superbly so! Furthermore it's a real beauty. The case, available in several colors, is conspicuous for the regal crown top. The lipstick itself is ideal. It spreads smoothly and stays on for ages. And there's enough to last ad infinitum!

The price of this everlasting lipstick is only $1.

Ideal Economy Package.

THE LARGE, modernistic bottle of toilet water which comes complete with an atomizer looks as though it might set you back a pretty penny. One sniff of its lilac-scented contents and you're convinced that it will. But, ahoy! Just ask the price. Only 89 cents!

Here's an ideal little economy package for a consolation prize, or guest remembrance.

Rich Voice and Proper Diction Held Essential for Prospective Leaders

Phonetic Method Is Used by Miss Beall in Teaching Speech.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

SPEECH THAT calls attention to itself is not good speech, in the opinion of Miss Hester Walker Beall, head of the Studio of the Spoken Word, at Stoneleigh Court.

"Voice should be a means, not an end," Miss Beall said yesterday, as she discussed speech as an adjunct to pleasing personality. "If, after a woman has finished talking, someone remarks, 'What a lovely voice you have,' it's no compliment. When one's voice is well-modulated and one's diction is as good as it should be, neither will be noticed. The important thing is to train both so they won't detract from your personality and from the ideas you wish to express."

Miss Beall believes, however, that pleasing speech is "the outward sign of an inward grace."

"Your way of speaking should corroborate your inner fineness," she said. "Harsh tones, careless pronunciation and sloppy enunciation grossly misrepresent a worthy person's character and place him at a distinct disadvantage."

Assets to Personality.

In view of this she feels a rich voice and proper diction are estimable assets to personality and are particularly valuable to individuals desiring leadership in industrial, commercial, professional or social fields.

"The utilitarian is the most important phase, then, of good speech," she said, after she had defined "good speech" as "standard speech."

In the latter connection she mentioned the United States is full of regional dialects, accents and idioms.

"It has been difficult, therefore, to establish a uniform speech," she said. "Our only hope regarding the maintenance of a standard type of expression lies in the wide use of dictionaries compiled by noted philologists, and in the training of individuals by competent teachers."

She believes one of the greatest barriers to acquiring pleasing American speech is the fear of being ridiculed and being thought affected. "Yet when we have standards for everything else in the world of art, science and industry, why should we follow as many different patterns of diction as there are regions in the United States?" she asked.

In her eight years of experience as a teacher of speech Miss Beall has discovered the average person has difficulty pronouncing correctly his "a's," "o's," "u's" and "r's." She is, therefore, convinced one's whole manner of speaking is vastly improved when he clears up his faulty vowels and the consonant "r" and instills some long "u" sounds in words like "due," "tune" and "absolutely."

Voice Quality Emphasized.

"Voice quality is also important," she said. "This, of course, depends on correct breathing, an essential part of good speech."

Discussing some of the principles she follows in teaching, Miss Beall stressed that breathing should be done with the diaphragm, rather than with the stomach or chest.

"This has a valuable effect on developing poise and confidence as well as a pleasing quality of voice," she said.

Along this line she pointed out voice training that emphasizes proper breathing is a far cry from the type popular in the "elocution era," when voice culture was primarily a matter of instruction in gesticulation and volume.

"Now gestures are used only to clarify the thought and voice volume is of no more importance than proper enunciation and pronunciation," she asserted.

Miss Beall teaches speech by the phonetic method, which, in her opinion "clarifies articulation to the extent faulty diction is entirely eliminated." Her curriculum includes, among other courses, a class in personality, supplemented by a series of Sunday afternoon teas, where students learn social amenities and gain poise through experience as hostesses.

Although she is convinced "correct speech habits should be instilled in childhood," she also believes "it is never too late to improve one's voice." Her classes, therefore, draw pupils from the age of 3 to 60, and are limited in size so individual training can be gauged according to needs of each pupil.

Underwood & Underwood.

Although she is convinced good speech is an estimable asset to personality, Miss Hester Walker Beall considers a pleasing voice "an outward expression of inward grace, rather than an end in itself." Speech that calls attention to itself detracts from one's ideas and charm, she believes.

Tips on Serving Left-Over Spinach, With Cheese or as Cream Soup.

By Dorothea Duncan.

IT ISN'T always possible to plan a meal so there won't be any leftovers. It doesn't matter so much when meat is left over for there are many attractive ways of reheating it. Vegetables, however, and greens in particular are especially difficult to serve as a warmed over dish.

Here are two suggestions for the use of left over spinach. Cold chopped spinach may be folded into a cheese souffle after all the ingredients have been mixed. Use just enough of the spinach to have it distributed lightly throughout the mixture. This makes an excellent luncheon dish. Another interesting luncheon dish is a cream of spinach soup which may be prepared from left over or freshly cooked spinach. Prepare it by the following recipe.

Cream of Spinach Soup.

1½ cups cooked spinach
2 cups milk, scalded
2 cups boiling water
3 bouillon cubes, chicken flavor
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1½ teaspoons scraped onion.

Chop spinach and force through sieve. Add to milk, water, and bouillon cubes in double boiler. Melt butter, add flour and seasonings, and stir well. Add a small amount of hot liquid and stir until smooth. Return to double boiler and cook until slightly thickened, stirring constantly. Serves four.

Costume of Wool Jersey Places Accent on Youth

Pattern No. 3445.

By Laura I. Baldt, A. M.

For many years Assistant Professor of Household Arts, Teachers College, Columbia University, New York, N. Y.

EVERYTHING about this eggplant wool jersey dress is youthful, from the plaits at the front (which are released in the skirt to give slight flare, so modish this season) to the buttons down the back in "little girl" fashion. Silk that looks woolly in dark green or rabbit's checked wool in ginger and rust tones, is very smart for this simple to sew dress. Style No. 3445 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18 years, 36, 38 and 40-inch bust. Size 16 requires 4 yards of 39-inch material.

Too Much Liberty for Children Visiting Relatives Is Unwise

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

SUSIE AND JOHN were to spend a month with their grandmother and spinster aunt. Before they went their mother gave them minute instructions about their behavior. "You are to obey whatever seems reasonable, but grandma is old-fashioned and your aunt is extra fussy, so when they seem unreasonable, do what you are used to doing at home."

Susan was 14 and John was 12. How were they to judge what was and was not reasonable, and why should their mother have credited them with superhuman characters? Even an adult would have been tempted to tip the scales, given such directions.

The visit was a failure. Susie and John romped over their grandmother and aunt with utter disregard of their wishes and rules but did not really enjoy themselves, since there was constant argument and their consciences were not always very clear. The two hostesses, flouted in their own home, were discouraged and worn out by a responsibility which though theirs, they could not fulfill.

The mother was not only unkind, but also was taking a great risk. Children are too inexperienced always to judge for themselves what is and is not safe or wise to do.

Even if grandmother and aunt are strict and at times seem unreasonable, they should be given authority if they are given responsibility. If any harm had come to Susie or John, not the children but the adults very probably would have been at fault.

It cannot harm children to learn to adjust themselves to conditions which differ from those at home. They themselves will be happier for trusting their guardians, however strict they may be, than if they are permitted to run wild and are answerable to no one.

Moles on Skin Are Dangerous When Irritated

Cancer Results in Few Cases, But Spread Is Rapid, Cure Difficult.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

MOST of us have moles on the skin. In general they are harmless and we go through life with these minor skin blemishes without discomfort. They are most commonly found on the face, the neck, and the back, and they assume different forms. Some are flat discolorations or pigmented spots, others are dark, warty growths, while a few contain hairs.

Many are visible at birth, although the areas may be so tiny as to escape notice. As the child grows older, however, moles increase in size, slowly for a few years, thereafter remaining stationary.

What are moles? They are pigmented areas that are not true skin, but are blended into and take the place of skin. Some authorities believe that each mole is made up of embryonal cells that contain melanin, a brownish pigment. The pigmented cells are called melanoblasts.

Dangerous When Irritated.

Are they dangerous? They may be when irritated, but when one considers the billions of moles that must exist in the world the number that exhibit malignant tendencies is relatively small. We may say that they do not constitute a great source of danger and that there is no need for their wholesale removal. One eminent skin specialist records that in 35 years of active practice he has observed but five cases of malignancy originating in these growths.

All such structures, however, may be irritated, and some may respond by developing cancer. When a mole is so situated that it is subjected to repeated injury from shaving, the rubbing of a collar band, or because of some type of occupation, it should be removed.

Sudden Growth Suspicious.

Following stimulation of the circulation around and in one of these blemishes there may be active growth of the cells with a spread to other parts of the body. The new cells travel through the lymph channels and later through the blood stream. The first sign of trouble may be that the area begins to itch, to throw off a slight secretion, or to become darker, even without increasing in size. In such circumstances most authorities agree that the mole should be treated as though it were cancerous and that surgical removal of the local lesion is indicated immediately.

If moles that have remained quiet for years suddenly begin to grow they must be regarded with suspicion, and careful removal is the wisest procedure. Particularly vicious are those that are bluish or slate colored, even though they are smooth and but slightly elevated above the surrounding skin. When irritated they are likely to develop into rapid growing cancer, extending to other parts of the body.

"Where QUALITY Comes FIRST."

U. S. Cuisines Win Praise of Rector

American women are becoming better cooks, but masculine table habits are getting worse, according to George Rector, internationally known food connoisseur.

"Just to watch a business man at a lunch counter wolf a ham sandwich, washing it down with a cup of coffee, breaks the heart of a gourmet," Mr. Rector is quoted by The Associated Press.

"But the American housewife—Ah! Her roast turkey, chicken potpie and hot breads have the once-predominant French cooking on the run. Some of our leading New York hotels now boast of women cooks.

"But the way our men eat! There are a few real epicureans of the table, like Adolph Menjou, who is of French descent, but was born in this country, and Jesse Lasky; all too few. Why, in the Diamond Jim Brady days an after-theater dinner of six courses lasted two or three hours. And it was all solid eating.

Louise Galleher, Protege of Mrs. Ruth Owen, Hailed as Gifted Exponent of Political Oratory

Campaigning Has Big Appeal to National Official of Young Democrats.

She Thinks Women Have Great Opportunity in This Field.

By Virginia Rishel.

HER FRIENDS say that any time Louise Galleher finds herself in a gathering of four of five persons—she makes a speech. Particularly is this true if the gathering has even a faint political hue to it. For the new national vice president of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, whose formal name is Mrs. John Galleher, of Leesburg, Va., is never happier than when she is facing an audience from a speaker's rostrum, and her exuberance is increased tenfold if the audience is a political one.

As a child in Florida, Louise Galligant wanted to be an actress. She is lovely enough in appearance to grace any State. Her hair has glints of gold in it, and curls up in wayward fashion from under her tip-tilted hat. Her features are finely chiseled, and her complexion is the sort that inspires ad writers. She knows that gray is a happy choice for a suit when one is on the blonde side, and that a light red tie is a flattering touch. Indeed, she would look well behind the footlights, but it seems that the stage was not her destiny.

After starring in neighborhood productions during her girlhood and collecting photographs of those whose names glittered in the bright lights, she grew up and went to college at the University of Miami. There, among other things, she registered for a public speaking course. Her teacher happened to be Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of William Jennings Bryan, and now the United States Minister to Denmark.

Aided Congress Campaign.

Mrs. Owen recognized in this new student a natural ability for speaking, and for four years she trained that ability. When, in 1928, she decided to run for Congress, she took her young protege with her on speaking tours. Miss Falligant spoke in behalf of Mrs. Owen night after night. Ruth Bryan Owen was elected—and by a large majority, incidentally—and when she came to Washington she brought Miss Falligant along with her.

Once in the Nation's Capital, her interest in party work increased. She was on hand, in 1932, when the national organization of the Young Democratic Clubs of America was formed, and served as chairman of the committee on constitution and by-laws. She continued to be active in the organization during its early days, holding the position of vice chairman of the Southern region. When the Roosevelt campaign came along, she swung into action as a speaker.

It was also at this period that she met John Galleher. He, too, was one of the charter members of the Young Democratic organization—she happened to sit next to him at the organization meeting—and theirs was a romance which flowered against a background of committeee meetings, stump speaking and electioneering. They were married in 1933, and their 20-months-old daughter, Louise Falligant Galleher, the second, will probably resemble her mother in more than name, because she is now being reared in an atmosphere of committee meetings, stump speaking and electioneering.

MRS. LOUISE GALLEHER.

Husband Is State NEC Chief.

Mr. Galleher is now NEC director for Virginia. He has always been active in the State organization of Young Democrats, and holds the State presidency. Until recently his wife was national committeewoman.

Mrs. Galleher, who crowded George Washington Law School and a District of Columbia Bar examination in between her young Democratic activities, discusses cases with her husband and does research in his law office.

Her position of vice president of the Young Democratic Clubs of America is her most recent honor. She was elected at the national convention in Milwaukee in August to succeed Miss Ruth Lockett, who resigned a short time ago as recorder of the General Land Office in the Interior Department to become a director of the National Youth Administration in southern California.

When asked about young women in politics, Louise Galleher's eyes light up and she verges on speech-making.

"Young women have an opportunity for political expression and political development today such as they never had before," she declares. "They have the means to obtain both of these things right along with the men. Our mothers and grandmothers didn't have these opportunities. I wish we could make young women take advantage of them!"

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

LET THE EXPLORERS and the adventurers have their thrills in the jungles, in the frozen north, in the air. For our part, we can't imagine anything more thrilling than building a new house. There's romance, adventure, uncertainty, woes and joys . . . all on one city lot. In short, the smell of sawdust and wet paint does to us what the tang of salt air does to an old-time wanderer.

* * * *

V. F. W. WRITES: I am building a new home on modified colonial style. Our furniture for both the living room and dining room is walnut and the rug in the living room has a tan and beige ground and an all-over small subdued pattern of deep blue. In the dining room we will use a rug in dark brown of Oriental pattern. Now our problem is wall tints for the living room, dining room and bedroom. What colors would you suggest? And what curtains? In the kitchen we will have a range in cream with blue trim—what colors would you use here?

* * * *

ANSWER: Why don't you have the walls for the living room and dining room tinted in powder blue? Then use glass curtains in warm ivory with draperies that have rose to deep reds in the pattern . . . a floral design possibly. For the bedroom, you might have the walls in white and use all lavender patterned chintzes. For the kitchen, I'd have the walls yellow and the linoleum blue . . . then use blue and white curtains.

On The Air Today

UP until a late hour yesterday the following data were officially made known in respect to Uncle Arthur Godfrey's "Gazette" premiere tonight.

It will be at 10 p. m., WJSV. Godfrey will be there, no doubt of that. He will bring several of his palsy-walsies from the Fox, at which arena of entertainment he and Arch McDonald are playing this week.

As guest entertainers he will present the Bonell Octet, a new choral ensemble.

It is unofficially reported (but on excellent authority) that the aforementioned McDonald will write much of the "Gazette's" script material this year.

The Godfrey Band will provide the musical interludes and Joe Krahling is back as soloist and Lou Bermen as Stooge No. 1.

The rest you will have to learn by being present tonight—through the simple process of listening. One thing is certain: To the Godfrey fan it will be good. After all, the details beyond that are of little import, methinks.

* * * *

Don't overlook tonight:

Melodrama: Title not even known at a late date, but the Mighty Allen Art Players promise a sequel to last week's "Who Killed Kirk Ruben?" WRC, at 9. A new Polish accent is announced by Minerva Pious.

Cavalcade: Franchot Tone (in second air appearance in last week) appears as star of episode "East Meets West" in "Cavalcade of America," WJSV, at 8.

Folk song: Lily Pons features composition by Zimbalist, with Andre Kostelanetz Orchestra, WJSV, at 9.

Youth today: New series of C. B. S. National Student Federation programs, titled "Youth Today," opens at 4 p. m., WJSV.

* * * *

Other offerings:

Spirituelle: "Voice of Needy" presents spirituelle group, WOL, at 8 o'clock.

Tragedy: Something ominous afoot at Sky Ranch—with trouble ahead. "One Man's Family," WRC, at 8.

Embarkation: Ceremonies as Vice President Garner and others leave for Philippine Presidential inauguration, WRC, 1:30 p. m.

Lawyer: James M. Beck talks on "Duty of the Lawyer in the Present Crisis," WMAL, at 11:15 p. m.

Phobia: Gracie Allen has another avuncular-phobia. Reveals her uncle's real name is Stool Pijohn, WJSV, at 8:30.

"Speed": Another true Sing Sing story with Warden Lewis E. Lawes, WMAL, at 9:30.

Gilbert and Sullivan: John Charles Thomas brings "Trial by Jury" to air, supported by Willie Morris, WMAL, at 9.

* * * *

Ambassador: Luis Calderon, Spanish Ambassador, and Mrs. Juliana Force, Carnegie International Exhibition program, WMAL, at 10.

Sports: An all Negro quarter-hour, WOL, at 7:45 p. m.

Gay Caballero: Frank Crumit sings an old favorite in "Log Cabin Revue," WRC, at 10 p. m. With Conrad Thibault.

Another big Post poll of listeners' preferences is in the offing. Plans are being completed to make this interesting sampling of what you and your neighbors like in the way of radio fare within the next two weeks. Why not be thinking who you will favor now that the fall and winter programs are back on the air?

Many a Dog Will Have Its Day In Fredericksburg Tomorrow

Annual Canine Mart to Feature Show and Auction.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 15.—This city will be the mecca for dog enthusiasts Thursday with the holding of the Dog Mart in the City Park. The mart, one of the town's historic institutions, was revived here in 1927 after a lapse of 127 years.

The program opens at 11 a. m. with the bench show where judges will view all the entrants according to classes and award ribbons.

Following lunch the dog auction is to take place. Here owners from many points will seek to find for themselves a capable bird hunter or a home loving pup.

Auctioneer Nat Kinsey, amid the clanging of his 100-year-old auction bell, will knock down the dogs to the highest bidders and auctioning will continue to the last animal.

Annually the event attracts a large and varied crowd. From the cornfields of nearby King Georges and Caroline come the Negroes with a skinny foxhound or a small rabbit dog, anxious to get a good price. Hunters and the "M. F. H's" from the hills of Warrenton and Middleburg dressed in costumes of the hunt also will witness the event.

The dog mart was instituted as a medium of trade with the Indians and continued until the Revolutionary War. The custom at that time was suspended and it was not until 1927 that the picturesque event was revived.

Judges of the show will be Ford E. Young, Washington dog fancier; Mac D. Hart, executive secretary of the department of game and inland fisheries, of Richmond, and Emmett R. Colbert, local sportsman.

The mart this year bids to attract approximately 500 entries.

Bridge Job to Be Let.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., Oct. 15.—Bids for construction of a new bridge and approaches on the Waynesboro-Hagerstown road will be opened November 1, according to Assemblyman Paul C. Moomaw. The work, sought for years, will eliminate a one-way bridge and hazardous curves approaching it.

The Burden of a Nation

By Felix Bruner

Five billion dollars for relief! This appropriation by the new Seventy-fourth Congress on demand of the Roosevelt Administration stunned economists and stretched the imagination of the country's taxpayers. It was unprecedented in peace time. Who was to spend it? The Administration set up an elaborate organization in Washington, with Harry Hopkins at its head. How was it to be spent? The Administration provided regulations dividing the funds between labor (for relief) and materials. But a further and more vital question was asked: What are the results? The Post, realizing the importance of this question, sent Felix Bruner, a member of its national news staff and seasoned investigator, out into the Nation—into city alleys and country byways—to find out. This is the fourth of his dispatches.

Providence, R. I.—The works relief program is functioning in Rhode Island. What is more, it appears to be functioning with relative efficiency. This is not merely a claim of officials, but the opinion of unbiased observers.

Then, too, the industrial skies are clearing in this State that depends for its livelihood on manufacturing. The cotton textile industry, due to a number of causes, still is in a bad way, but some of its losses are being offset by booms and near-booms in the woolen textile industry, the rubber industry, the machine tool and the jewelry industries.

Optimism seems to have taken the place of depression gloom. Businessmen will tell you improved conditions have come about in spite of the New Deal rather than because of it. They still talk of that notable Republican victory in the congressional election last August.

Of course, there is still a tremendous amount of unemployment, in spite of improved conditions. There is a feeling that unless the cotton textile industry picks up, or unless something is substituted for it, there is not much hope of normal employment conditions.

Unemployment continues also because fewer people are producing more goods. Some manufacturers have forgotten the NRA codes. One jewelry manufacturer said that he was producing with 160 workers an amount of merchandise that would have required 260 persons to turn out under the codes.

"Our people like it," he said, "because they individually get more pay for the longer hours."

He said he had no thought much about those other 100 workers who may be looking to the Government for help.

Cotton textile manufacturers are blaming their plight on a number of causes—the movement of the industry to the South, the processing tax and the AAA cotton price policy. The latter two they hope to eliminate eventually, but they admit that because of the movement Southward there is little hope that there ever will be a return to the old conditions. Scattered all over this community are empty factories, some of them comparatively new, waiting for new industries to move in.

J. Burleigh Cheney, a two-fisted, enthusiastic individual, is in charge of WPA work here. He tells a story of accomplishment that is borne out by investigation. He is well on toward putting the unemployed of the State to work, and, barring some unforeseen development, should have them all busy by November 1, the deadline set by the President.

Every cent spent by WPA in Rhode Island will go for labor, Cheney said. The State and local communities are contributing all the materials. Of course, many of the jobs, here as elsewhere, do not involve much material, but Cheney insists there is no boondoggling. That is a matter of opinion. Some of the white-collar projects sound suspiciously like it.

"In the first place," said Cheney, "we went to every city and town and asked them to dig up projects. We told them they were going to have a hand in what was done and that we expected them to furnish money for materials. Everybody came through. We sent to Washington enough projects to take care of three times the relief labor."

Rhode Island has about 16,500 families on relief. Last spring the number was 18,250. Here, as elsewhere, the enrollment of families never before on relief partially offsets those who are taken off because their breadwinners have been given jobs. The private resources of some who have succeeded in holding out thus far are becoming exhausted.

The unemployed are being put to work at the rate of about 4,000 a week. The State has been given about $5,000,000 out of the WPA funds and is expecting somewhat more. Cheney is being allowed to pick out projects from a large approved list. He insists that there will be a full distribution of jobs among all classes of workers and there will be no workers left over because of inability to find suitable jobs for them.

Neither have there been any labor complications in Rhode Island. Relief hours have not been cut. Workers are expected to give 140 hours a month to their jobs at security wages. These wages range through all the various schedules set up by President Roosevelt, the higher wages being paid in the more populous centers and the lower in the rural communities.

Cheney gives the relief workers a sales talk. He tells them they are not competing with private industry. He tells them their wages are being kept sufficiently low so that there will be no temptation to stay on relief if a private job opens up, because private employment is bound to pay more. He tells them that because they have not worked for a long while, they are out of training and that the relief jobs will put them in condition for private employment, which he says is just around the corner.

"These jobs," says Cheney, "constitute a direct progression back to private industry."

It sounds good as a sales talk. Maybe it has some influence on the workers. Certainly there is slight evidence that there is any revolt against conditions, such as exists in New York City. Professional organizers of the unemployed, with all their dues-paying schemes, apparently have not yet discovered this community. Maybe Yankee thriftiness is a barrier.

State relief headquarters was busy when I called there. Standing about were a score of boys.

"CCC recruits," a clerk explained.

Down in front of the Postoffice Building were 50 more. An Army lieutenant was calling the roll. As he called a name the boy who responded climbed into a waiting bus. The boys all appeared extremely young. The age limit has been cut to 17. It is to be hoped that birth certificates were looked up. Some didn't appear more than 14.

"We are taking 50 of them every day to Fort Adams at Newport," the officer explained after he had finished calling the roll. "We are going to keep it up until November 1, when our quota is expected to be filled."

At Fort Adams the boys are outfitted and sent to various camps. There was no shouting of goodbye. Only a few members of their families were there to see them off. The boys wore sober expressions. Working in the woods in a New England winter isn't exactly fun.

Many old PWA projects are nearing completion and arrangements are being made to get some new ones under way. In that famous August election the people of Rhode Island voted on a bond issue to pay the State's share of the PWA program. They turned down much of it, but they did vote to finance their part in considerable construction work, including additions to State institutions. The whole program will run between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000.

These projects were almost lost as a result of the misunderstandings between Secretary Ickes and Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator. After the voters had approved the bond issue, the projects were sent to Washington for approval. They were approved by the Ickes organization and sent to the Hopkins administration for a check. There they were all turned down because the Hopkins group contended the cost per man per year was too high.

When this news came back to Providence, Gov. Green got busy. He went to Washington to see Ickes. Then he went to Hyde Park to see President Roosevelt. It was partly his complaint that persuaded the President to remove Hopkins from the PWA show and to let Ickes run it himself. The Hopkins veto was in turn vetoed and Ickes again approved the projects. Now the people of Rhode Island are going to get the improvements for which they voted to spend 55 per cent in return for 45 per cent Federal grants. Plans are being completed and work soon will be started. It is doubtful, however, whether it can be finished with the year limitation set by the President. In this respect, however, the Rhode Island program is no different from most PWA programs.

Ship Posts Bond In $20,000 Libel

Action Brought by Father of Missing Oiler.

By the Associated Press.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 15.—The Nelson Line steamer Sutherland was expected to resume her voyage to New York today after posting bond in connection with a $20,000 libel filed by B. W. Gren, of Bloomington, Ill., father of Ralph H. Green, 20, oiler on the ship who disappeared Saturday while the ship was between Charleston and Wilmington.

Reports yesterday that the missing youth had appeared depressed before his disappearance were described today by members of the Sutherland crew as preposterous.

The elder Green, woh arrived in Norfolk yesterday and spent the day with his attorneys aboard the ship, also scouted the suggestion his son might have jumped overboard.

List of Historic Places Near Winchester Asked

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 15.—The National Park Service desires a list of areas in and near Winchester which may warrant an investigation for purposes of marking and preservation, according to information received today from A. E. Demaray, acting director.

Demaray informed City Manager Arthur Field that the National Park Service is engaged in a survey of historic sites throughout the country. Considerable work is being done in the Shenandoah National Park area, where a study is being made of the old cabins and other areas of historic interest. Plans are being made for marking and preserving many of them.

Auto Victim Buried.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 15.—Funeral services for Fauntleroy Lambert, jr., who was killed Sunday in an automobile accident near Farmville, were conducted yesterday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Lambert, by the Rev. R. A. Magill, rector of St. Johns Episcopal Church. Fauntlerow was an only child.

A Discreet Labor Policy.

Efforts to place the American Federation of Labor on record as favoring amendment of the Constitution to permit centralized control over industry have borne no fruit at the Atlantic City convention. Reports indicate that this issue was much discussed by the executive council, with leaders who are close to President Roosevelt favoring immediate indorsement of such a constitutional change. More conservative counsel prevailed. The council has made known that further study of the matter will be made before the A. F. of L. is asked to support any change in the basic law.

The wisdom of avoiding hasty conclusions on questions of such vital importance is eminently clear. While the Supreme Court's opinion in the Schechter case was unanimous and unequivocal, it is generally admitted that the test case was poorly chosen and that the act which the court invalidated had been carelessly drafted. Before any constitutional amendment is advanced the extent of the present authority of Congress to deal with national industrial problems should certainly be more thoroughly defined.

The Supreme Court will pass upon the legal status of other basic New Deal statutes during its present session. These decisions are expected to clarify the very issue over which the A. F. of L. is concerned. To sponsor an amendment while such important cases are pending would be both haphazard and premature.

Still other considerations probably encouraged the executive council to cautious procedure. What would be the position of organized labor under the proposed amendment extending governmental powers over industry and business? Control of employers implies similar regulation of employes, as many of the more astute labor leaders have recognized. Before attempting to formulate an amendment to which organized labor could lend its support, this issue ought to be thoroughly explored. For no exception of labor from the general provisions of an industrial control amendment could be expected.

One of the chief virtues of the Constitution is that it is always open to amendment. It is taken for granted, however, that proposed changes will be formulated with the greatest care and in response only to widespread demands of the people. Adherence of the A. F. of L. to that sound view will enhance the respect in which it is held outside the ranks of organized labor.

The Vote In Canada.

The surprise of the Canadian elections is not so much the massive strength with which the Liberals elbowed the Conservatives out of Ottawa by the largest majority on record, but rather the unimpressive showing of the other challenging factions, notably the Social Creditors and the Reconstructionists.

As was generally predicted, Premier Bennett's administration was roundly repudiated by a wave of "agin the givernmint" sentiment. Notwithstanding his plea that the Conservatives had successfully guided Canada through the worst depression of its history and by judicious reforms had renovated and brought up to date the social, economic and financial machinery of the Dominion, he could not distract attention from the country's 1,500,000 unemployed whose misfortunes, it was popularly believed, were a result of Mr. Bennett's high-tariff policy.

Accordingly, most of the country swung over to the side of the Opposition, where Mr. Mackenzie King and his appealing aid, Mr. Mitchell Hepburn, the young and vivacious premier of Ontario, were maintaining a steady but rationally modulated barrage of criticism against the Conservatives. Certain sections went much further leftward and threw their support behind the Social Credit Party, which had succeeded earlier in convincing Alberta that a $25-a-month handout for all is healthy doctrine, or behind the socialist Cooperative Commonwealth Federation, or the new Reconstructionist Party headed by Mr. Harry Stevens, one-time minister of trade and commerce, with his trust-busting program.

There may be a lesson for all share-the-wealthers and trust-busters in the Canadian results. For none of the parties urging radical redistribution plans made very much of a showing, although it is reasonable to assume that the tabulations of the gross popular vote will show more support for them than the division of seats at Ottawa would indicate. It is particularly striking that Mr. Stevens, a man recognized for his ability and vision, saw his party win only one seat. He had for his campaign appeal the seemingly popular arguments that the Government had failed miserably to implement its "New Deal" pledges and that both it and the opposing Liberals were too much motivated by "the interests" in whose hands he believes the Dominion's wealth is dangerously and unfairly concentrated.

Beyond that, any comparison with politics in the United States falls down, chiefly because each party in Canada was running on a "New Deal" platform. The chief significance of the election as regards this country lies in the matter of the trade treaty between the two nations, long pending. Although both Conservatives and Liberals have favored the reciprocal agreement, the latter have been more outright in its support. Now, with the election over, completion of these important negotiations should be hastened.

A Long Step Forward.

It cannot be said that the Ethiopian war would have been averted if the very significant speeches broadcast yesterday by the American Secretary of State and the British foreign minister had been made a month earlier. Factors other than her shortage of natural resources entered into Italy's decision to attack, and at Geneva, on September 11, Sir Samuel Hoare suggested the desirability of a more equitable exploitation colonial raw materials, which he again referred to yesterday as a development necessary to consolidate world peace.

None the less the declarations made yesterday should do much to facilitate termination of the fighting in East Africa, particularly if the start which has been made in economic and financial sanctions is gradually intensified so as to bring effective pressure on Italy. For the Italian case, so far as it is reasonable, is based upon what Ambassador Rosso calls "an actual and physical need" of his nation for access to sources of raw materials on the one hand and markets on the other. If that need can be met through the formula jointly suggested by Secretary Hull and Sir Samuel Hoare, there will be very little case for the protracted warfare undoubtedly necessary to make Ethiopia an Italian colony.

It is the path of statesmanship to accompany collective action against an aggressor state with constructive effort to solve the underlying problems which helped to cause the aggression. In such effort leadership should be expected from those who themselves have least to fear, and no selfish interest in the controversy at issue. For that reason the Nation will welcome Mr. Hull's assurance that the United States will interest itself in international agreement "upon the organization and principles which will assure that all important raw materials will become available on reasonable terms wherever they are needed." Here is an honest and honorable acceptance of the world responsibility which rests on the United States by reason of our world power.

Japan in Manchuria, Italy in Ethiopia, and German military preparation in the background are sufficient evidence that verbal insistence on peace by the contented nations will not of itself secure that end. Barefaced aggression by discontented powers cannot be tolerated. But an essential counterpart to the suppression of aggression is a vital formula for assuaging the legitimate grievances of nations which consider themselves underprivileged.

It was on the necessity of such a formula that the Secretary of State of this country and the Foreign Minister of Great Britain concentrated yesterday. And not the least noteworthy part of Mr. Hull's address was his frank assertion that no mere negative doctrine of isolation is adequate to American policy, or consistent with American needs. "In the task of remedying the conditions and difficulties which foster conflict," said Mr. Hull, "a common basis of action must be found with other countries."

In other words, the intelligent policy is constructive effort to prevent war, rather than any feverish assumption that neutrality can be guaranteed once large-scale war breaks out. It is certainly time to realize, in the words of the Secretary of State, that "peace cannot be a passive condition obtained and enjoyed in careless and selfish ease."

The WPA Collapse.

WPA officials are doubtless perturbed over the failure of the Army engineers to carry out the impossible requirements of the work-relief program. But the announcement that maximum employment on the 104 projects under supervision of the Army may not be reached before spring occasions no surprise. For weeks it has been evident that the WPA could not create 3,500,000 jobs by November 1. Frank recognition by the WPA that its goal is unattainable would be a step toward the inauguration of a more rational work-relief program.

Far more important than the failure to create a fixed number of jobs in a given period is the steady sacrifice of principle to expediency. In its scramble to convert doles into pay checks the WPA recently reduced working hours. Apparently it was anticipated that such a move would permit the employment of more men. Actually the Army engineers have found it necessary to cut down the number to be employed on some projects because the limited funds available will not cover the higher wage payments. As a result the engineers' program will furnish 55,000 fewer jobs than was anticipated.

This situation suggests, also, that many projects for which funds had been allotted before the liberalization of wage scales will remain uncompleted at the end of the WPA program unless additional money is appropriated. Even if the WPA is regarded as a stop-gap undertaking to cope with an emergency, such chaotic want of planning can not be excused.

In the new rules adopted for New York City by the National Youth Administration the breakdown of principle has been carried still further. With the WPA proper straining every nerve to create jobs, it was a foregone conclusion that the NYA would experience difficulties in finding useful part-time work for high school students. But this arm of the WPA had adopted a policy without analyzing its feasibility. Now in the frantic race to help spend the $4,000,000,000 work-relief fund the NYA refuses to change its course. It will subsidize students without requiring work, thus doing exactly what its parent organization was created to stop.

At its inception the work-relief program was conceived as a means of employing jobless men on useful public works at subsistence wages that would not compete with private enterprise. In actual practice the social value of projects undertaken has been a secondary consideration. The subsistence wage idea has given way to the payment of prevailing hourly rates. And now comes a cash dole for high school students. If there is any basic principle of sound work relief that the WPA has not infringed, the public ought to be reminded of it. Otherwise the impression that the WPA has completely ignored the will of Congress will stand without challenge.

Precept And Practice.

Charges of improper manipulation of the Government bond market through use of the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund, as brought by former Budget Director Douglas, must be weighed against the authorization given the Secretary of the Treasury in this field by the gold reserve act of 1934. Section 10(b) of this act provides that the stabilization fund

> . . . shall be available for expenditure, under the direction of the secretary of the Treasury and in his discretion, for any purpose in connection with carrying out the provisions of this section, including the investment and reinvestment in direct obligations of the United States of any portions of the fund which the Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of the President, may from time to time determine are not currently required for stabilizing the exchange value of the dollar.

There is, in the light of this clear and sweeping mandate, no question of the legality of the Treasury operations to which Mr. Douglas objects. This is not a case in which the obvious intent of legislation has been distorted by administrative action. Some of the criticism voiced by the President's former director of the budget might, therefore, have been more effectively applied to the looseness of the gold reserve act instead of policies conducted under it.

But to say that the latter are entirely legal is far from saying that they are financially and socially desirable. As Mr. Douglas points out, through stabilization fund purchases of its own obligations the Treasury has been practicing what it so roundly condemned in connection with abuses on the private security markets. A lot of New Deal moralization is punctured by the former budget director's tart comment that: "I had always thought it was dishonest for a corporation to deal in its own stock for the purpose of . . . encouraging people to buy its stock at more than it was worth."

There are, of course, times when the Government is compelled to pursue a deficit-financing program. Redemption for sinking funds are properly used to stabilize the market in war time and temporarily, as an extreme resort, in acute peacetime emergencies. But as a continuous routine practice such manipulation can only be justified by the argument that continuous deficit financing makes it necessary.

The root of the evil, therefore, goes deeper than the secret manipulation which the Treasury is practicing, and is found in the profligacy of unbalanced national expenditures. Mr. Douglas has done a service to the country by showing the questionable devices to which deficit financing is forcing the Treasury. His disclosures are the more timely because the operation of the stabilization fund must be terminated next January, unless the President continues it "for not more than one additional year" by proclamation recognizing continuation of a national emergency.

The True Art Center.

The plan for establishing a national gallery of art in Washington now seems certain of realization. At Pittsburgh, on Tuesday, Andrew W. Mellon definitely set aside $10,000,000 for the construction of a gallery wherein to house here his almost fabulous art-treasure, which includes excellent examples of work as various as that of Titian and Goya, el Greco and Raphael, Gilbert Stuart and Franz Hals. Mr. Mellon deserves thanks for his generosity and social sense, while the city deserves congratulations upon its great good fortune.

Nevertheless, what has now happened is, or ought to be, only a start. It is eminently fitting that the Capital of the United States should contain one of the Nation's finest collections of famous paintings. But, in the fullest sense, a true center of art is much more than a storehouse of great pictures: it is a cultural powerhouse from which radiate both vital appreciation of art and stimulation to creative endeavor. At best the Mellon gift can provide only the perfect setting in which these forces can most readily become operative.

Einstein says that in the fourth dimension an orange could be turned wrong side out without breaking the peeling. There may be other advantages of existence in the fourth dimension.

"A thing isn't necessarily true because it sounds reasonable," asserts a philosopher. This sounds reasonable.

Penalizing Thrift.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been reliably informed that in Baltimore the PWA teaching positions will go this year only to those who have been actually receiving relief. In other words, those teachers on last year's PWA school projects who through thrift, sacrifices, industry and integrity have managed to keep themselves and their families off relief, will be penalized for their pains by not being put on the list of eligibles for work this year.

These PWA teachers, some of whom hold a Ph. D. degree, received niggardly compensation at best, for the maximum salary brought only $22 a week for the short school year.

This penalizing industry and integrity is evidently one of the results of Mr. Hopkins' recent victory for his policy of getting employables off the relief rolls at any cost to the Treasury, sound policy, and the welfare of the individuals who are presumably to be helped.

This policy of giving jobs only to those on relief rolls rather than to all who can show they need work is short-sighted, indifferent to the individual's efficiency, sacrifices and integrity, and self-defeative in that those employables off relief will now be forced to resort to relief, not only because they need food and shelter, but because being on relief is a prerequisite of employment.

This method of being forced to go on relief to get work is vicious in the extreme. It flouts every sense of fair play and efficiency and raises the question as to just what is the real objective behind the Hopkins program. Is it to institute a system of rotation of relief recipients? Is it to help the largest number regardless of the demoralizing effects upon those helped as well as those not helped, but who should be? Is it to add insult to injury to those unemployed employables who have maintained their self-respect, often at tragic material costs and sacrifices? Or is it a forerunner to a permanent system of Federal relief?

Regardless of the politics and the policy of Administration leaders, choosing workers only from relief rolls will greatly encourage new names going on relief and penalize the efforts of those who have wanted, and still do, to stay off relief rolls.

China And The Silver Program.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read with interest Herbert M. Bratter's correspondence on "Collapse of Silver Program" appearing in The Post of October 11. I think that Mr. Bratter has demonstrated with authentic proof the futile efforts of the silver program. There are, however, two crucial points which Mr. Bratter has not mentioned.

First, one of the purposes as announced by the advocates of the silver program was to increase the purchasing power of the silver-using people. This means in substance that by raising the price of silver it would enable Chinese people to buy more from the United States. But the statistics of Chino-American trade bears evidence to the contrary. The United States trade with China for the first six months of this year showed a drop of 40 per cent as compared with the same period last.

Second, the program has as its aim also the attainment of the remonetization of silver abroad as well as at home. Insofar as China is concerned, the effect of the program indicates to the opposite. Strictly speaking, China is at present no longer on the silver standard. The heavy drain of the white metal from China as a result of the silver-purchase program has forced China to impose export duties and equalization taxes on silver export. The exchange value of yuan—the Chinese monetary mint—has, in fact, been divorced from the world price of silver (since October 15, 1934). Moreover, the internal value of the yuan has also been in the process of separation from the white metal. Though the conversion of paper currency into silver is maintained in principle, in practice banks of late have successfully refused to redeem paper currency presented in large amounts. It, therefore, shows that not only the attainment of remonetization of silver by other countries is still far off, but a further demonetization of silver is already in process in China, subsequent to the silver purchase program in this country. Out Of The Fog.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While reading the volumes written on the subject of "Defense Highway," one is impressed by the many arguments advanced—some good, some bad and others just silly.

Recently, Mr. Gillilan contributed an article filled with plain common sense, perhaps a little too strongly worded to please the taste of those who blame everything in sight sooner than admit that a careless act committed by themselves or by their friends was primarily responsible for a serious accident.

In The Post of September 23, you print a letter signed Leontine Gallahorn, which shows that the writer belongs to that class of persons who feel that every highway deficiency, even fog, should be remedied by the State in order that motorists may maintain a 40 to 45 mile per hour speed at all times, rain or shine, day or night, even on a road they have never driven over before.

What, pray, can be done about fog? No road is safe at more than 15 miles per hour when fog sets in. If you are caught in it you have to be a good sport and grin and bear it just as you have to bear all other traffic annoyances. When the really sensible driver finds it difficult to tell just what lies ahead he slows down to 1910-model speed.

The Supreme Architect made the earth the shape it is and also created rain, fog, sleet and snow, and man is supposed to have the intelligence to govern himself according to conditions. When he refuses to do so he is the menace, not the highway!

More On The XIX Amendment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with much interest the letter by "Citizen" on the editorial page of your issue of October 14 and I want to concur in all he states. Repeal of the nineteenth amendment of the Constitution is, in my opinion, much more justified than was repeal of the eighteenth amendment, bad as that was.

O. E. BARNETT.
Washington, Oct. 14.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It it surprising at a time like this, when millions of women are out of work and the Government departments as well as private enterprises are overcrowded with men, that anyone should have the assurance to declare that the Federal service, or any other service, is an inviting field for men. Of course, the Government departments are alluring to men who despise to get out and do a man's work and assume the responsibility of maintaining the home. But what will eventually result from this crowding of women out of employment for the sake of gratifying the wishes of male office seekers?

The present unprecedented situation with respect to unemployment is undoubtedly due to a considerable extent to men taking the place of women in what are known as feminine jobs, as well as in other lines of employment.

In surveying the field of employment in the United States, one is astounded at the enormous change that has taken place in the various avenues of employment due to the employment of men instead of women. And yet the woman is supposed to help provide for the family needs! The question arises, how long under such conditions can the present status of family life continue? Not only that, it increases the tendency to idleness and crime. Nothing is more certain to destroy the greatness of a Nation than to weaken the morale of its womanhood.

The remedy in the present situation lies with the women themselves, aided by those men who believe that women are the rightful and proper persons to carry on enterprises such as baking, canning and preserving, laundering, cleaning, pressing and dyeing, millinery, dressmaking, designing, weaving, beauty culture and other such industries, in addition to their right to help make the law and govern the country in which they live and under whose laws they must live and pay taxes. Those who discriminate against women in the matter of employment, whether public or private, should themselves be discriminated against. There should be concerted action in this matter everywhere throughout the land.

It would be proper to begin with a movement to amend the nineteenth amendment so as to extend to women the rights given to men in the "Bill of Rights" contained in the Constitution, supplemented by aggressive action in all lines of business. Unless some such action is taken, present conditions as regards female workers will grow worse rather than better.

The Post Impressionist

Cauterizing A Classic.

Post Office, Wednesday.

IT was to be expected that our recent reference to Constance Garnett's popular version of Dostoevskii's masterpiece would evoke replies; in precisely such expectation did we make the reference. Therefore, we are prepared to reply to the replies.

Of course, we don't have to respond verbally to those of an applausive nature; to them we need but bow—and bow we now do. But a verbal answer is unavoidable when we receive a message such as this from such a reader as Clarke M. Johnson:

"The Garnett translation of 'The Brothers Karamazov' is the standard translation. There are thousands of copies treasured in thousands of American homes. Why do you attack it?"

Well, we attack it because we think it is unworthy of its great original.

The style of Dostoevskii's best work is—Russian scholars tell us—immaculate. The style of that novel's most popular English translation reminds us of what a certain social censor said about a certain social aspirant: "Oh, yes, he has manners—plenty of manners—and they're all bad!"

It isn't that we complain heavily against the ordinary errors in the Garnett version; its misuse of "mutual" for "common," of "nor" when "or" would be correct. When, speaking of two people, it employs "one another" for "each other," it joins the company of most minor British writers. Does this translation mix its pronouns so promiscuously that a Sherlock Holmes is required for the discovery of their antecedents? That also is a daily British aberration.

Many of these mistakes may be charged to haste. So may "pride and haughtiness was betrayed"—"the boy threw a stone into Alyosha's face." One simply notes that, in translating a classic, haste itself is a crime.

Moreover, this volume contains a plenty of blunders bred by an ignorance of Russian, of English, or of both tongues.

* * *

There are solecisms of which Dostoevskii was never guilty:

Little Lise, growing angry, "fires up."

Somebody else wears a "stylish" coat.

Women are—believe it or not—"the fair sex."

And what are you going to do when a "standard translation" solemnly and ingenuously intrudes the note of the ridiculous into the tolling of a passing bell? As thus:

One tragic scene "was just as the day before. though different."

Horrible Fyodor Pavlovitch "chuckled a laugh."

Grushenka—or was it her unhappy rival?—"remained trembling all over, rigid."

"She made him sit by her; he was beside himself."

"Alyosha had forgotten to lay on his mattress."

And what of the hot-tempered Mitya? "The eyes of all were fixed; he thrust them into his pocket."

Finally we commend you to the sequences of tenses in the following passage:

"The old widower Samsonov, a man of large fortune, was stingy and merciless. He tyrannised over his grown-up sons, but, for the last year during which he had been ill and lost the use of his swollen legs, he had fallen greatly under the influence of his protegee . . . The old man, now long since dead, (was) miserly; though Grushenka's hold upon him was so strong that he could not live without her—it had been so especially for the last two years—he did not settle a considerable fortune on her."

If from that you derive any sense of the relation of time to the events of the story, it indicates that, most likely, Samsonov was dead. You become more convinced of this a few lines later: "And he kept his word; he died and left everything to his sons."

* * *

Well, you are wrong—that's all. For, behold this, a paragraph or so further along:

"'Don't keep on with the captian.' These were the very words of the old profligate, who felt already that his death was not far off and who actually died five months later."

No, Mr. Johnson! It pains us to differ from you. We consider this novel one of the greatest novels of any time or tongue—probably the very greatest. But, for precisely that reason, we believe that its translations into English should be translations into good English: its "standard" renderings should keep their standards high.

"The Brothers Karamazov" triumphs even over the Garnett version—emerges like a phoenix from the Garnett flames. If "thousands of American homes" can't get "The Brothers Karamazov" in any other form than the Garnett form, then they ought to have it in that form.

But all this admission does not induce the Post-Impressionist to love the Garnett form any better.

New York, Oct. 15.

CALIFORNIA and Florida are the only States in the American Union which have attempted to restrict interstate immigration. In California about a year ago, with winter coming on and with Upton Sinclair running for Governor on a platform which promised parsnips for poetry, there was a sudden rush of immigration which was considered undesirable. Most of these people had little or no money, and most of them made for the southern, or sunny, half of the State to escape the cold. Efforts were made to turn back the stags among this tide, and many ragged males were arrested as vagrants. The women and children were not molested. Eventually, the effort to restrict or sift immigration was abandoned.

Florida's restriction amounted to nothing more than an unofficial proclamation by the Governor, who is a politician of the familiar type and an immigrant or carpetbagger himself, hailing from Brooklyn, N. Y. The Governor was in favor of halting undesirable immigrants at the Georgia line. The test of desirability was simple. If a family of Americans clattered up to the immigration station outside Jacksonville in a pulsating flivver without money they were undesirable. They would be turned around and headed back toward the cold country, while gamblers and hoodlums sailed swiftly by on the trains and planes to establish the winter quarters of the underworld in Miami, as usual.

• • • •

THE American citizen is free to roam anywhere within his country from State to State without a passport and subject to only the normal suspicion which strangers arouse in some places. There are no customs offices at the State lines to fumble through suitcases, confiscate cameras and collect duties on cigarettes or matches. And a Georgia man wishing to spend a month in Oregon does not have to deposit with the Oregon State Treasury in advance sufficient money to cover his expenses for the duration of his visit.

A traveler preparing to visit Europe is impressed with the simplicity and freedom of travel in the United States. There are many countries in Europe, some of which did not exist at all when most adult Americans of the present time were studying geography. The consulates are scattered all over the island of Manhattan.

The Russian consulate is the most luxurious of all. It occupies a gorgeous mansion on Fifth avenue. The Russians charge $11 for admission to their country, but they demand, in addition, a deposit of $15 a day first class, or $8 a day second class, to cover the expenses of the visitor in Russia. The consulate works only three hours a day, four days a week, and the first visit, therefore, usually is unsuccessful. This causes much bad language. On the second visit the traveler discovers that the consulate is not the place to do business, anyway, and is referred to the Intourist Agency.

• • • •

THE prices of visas range from nothing at the Japanese consulate to $17.37 at the Rumanian. Great Britain charges $10, Hungary, $4.34; Austria, $2; France, $3.34; Spain, $1.63; Poland, $1.05, and Germany 50 cents. Lithuania charges a dime.

Belgium, Switzerland and Italy waive the visa, but Italy probably will demand it now that the country is at war. Certain consulates also require from one to three passport photographs, and the more backward the nation the more laborious the formality of obtaining the simple chop of a rubber stamp authorizing the tourist to present himself at some border station some weeks hence and try to get in.

Most of them are running some kind of fair or jubilee or winter sport carnival as a bait for tourists. The Poles are advertising a winter sport program in opposition to the Germans' Olympic winter show, which seems pretty sure to come off regardless of the feeling in this country that no good can come of a great international round-up of athletes under German auspices in the present state of the world. But even if the winter program goes on the summer events probably will be forbidden by developments, with all Europe choosing up sides in preparation for another war to end war.

IN this country an Ohio man wishing to go to Illinois may hop into his dashing motor car, aim it down the road and tear across the State of Indiana to Illinois without the slightest formality. But in Europe, with enemies planted cheek to cheek and friends separated by hostile stretches, they want to know details about the proposed visit. "Indiana" wants to know who were the father and mother of the person wishing to cross "Indiana" into perfidious "Illinois," which is inhabited by low barbarians and which rightfully belong to "Indiana," anyway, according to all fair historians. And the "Illinois" people, despising the vile and brutal "Hoosiers" and suspecting them of a plot to overrun their country almost any minute, want to be sure that the visitor is not a "Hoosier" spy or agitator coming in to undermine the "State of Illinois."

It is all a strange, almost unbelievable state of affairs to anyone who is accustomed to the free and easy style of travel in the United States. Not even in the late Fascist State of Louisiana under the Dictator were outlanders from New York or Alabama required to show passports and give evidence that they were innocent of political intentions.

Quality of Happiness

By

William Lyon Phelps

IN one of the greatest novels ever written, "Fathers and Children," by the Russion genius Turgenev, apart from the steadily maintained interest in the course of the story, and the skill displayed in the portrayal and development of various characters, it will repay anyone to consider thoughtfully all the conversations that take place between the clever Mme. Odintsov and the ruthless young physician, Bazarov. On one occasion, she remarks:

"We were talking of happiness, I believe. . . . Tell me why it is that even when we are enjoying music, for instance, or a fine evening, or a conversation with sympathetic people, it all seems an intimation of some measureless happiness existing apart somewhere rather than actual happiness—such, I mean, as we ourselves are in possession of? Or perhaps you have no feeling like that?"

• • • •

I think many of us have had feelings exactly like that; though I do not remember seeing anywhere except in this novel so clear an expression of them.

In the first place, it is not a good idea to analyze happiness; we are usually most happy when we are not thinking of ourselves. Now the moment we consider our own feelings or endeavor to diagnose our own state of mind, happiness will take flight; it may give us the impression of being near, but not actually present.

Another thing. Just as there are no perfect human beings anywhere, so the very structure of human existence is never flawless. As Browning puts it, "Heaven's gift takes earth's abatement."

The University And The State

Professors In Mexico Resign At Attempt To Shackle Them.

By Jeffrey Paul.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Mexico City.

THERE is more than meets the eye in reports which have come out of Mexico concerning the recent closing—and more recent reopening—of the National University. Widespread opinion believes that the government faction which brought on the closing by refusing subsidies to the ancient institution was simply a final step in the struggle against clericalism. I think it can be asserted that the government's action was unjustified on this ground and that Mexico has now apparently lost the services of a large group of men whose devotion to high educational ideals she can ill afford to lose by any attempt to regiment their scholastic thought and teaching.

In 1933 the National University of Mexico was allowed to call itself "autonomous," and was granted the right to teach the youth of the country in accordance with the universally accepted idea that teaching should be free and not tied to any political or economic creed. But the decree that granted such freedom contained a clause certain some day to bring on a crisis—a crisis which came to pass a few weeks ago.

The government had, in accordance with the 1933 decree, supplied the university with the sum of 10,000,000 pesos with which to carry on its work. This replaced the previous annual grant of 3,000,000 pesos. The motive for this move was construed as follows: When the school ran out of money (since it could exist only on the lump sum's income and on what it could obtain in gifts), its directors would be back before the party in power, hats in hand, ready to teach what the politicians thought should be taught in the country's most important center of higher learning.

Unfortunately for the plan, practically all the leading teachers did not react as expected; they resigned, almost to a man, and the country faced the prospect of having no national university (in its truest sense) unless the government opened a totally new institution and placed it in the hands of mediocre men. Apparently that is what has taken place.

• • • •

HOW did affairs reach such a pass and who were some of the personalities concerned in the matter? First of all, a radical student minority group, calling itself "the left wing" (el ala izquierda), began agitating for a supposed housecleaning early in September. I was assured (and later developments have confirmed this information) that "the left wingers" were simply disgruntled students who wished to take control of the university for their own benefit, using as a pretext the alleged "clerical and nonrevolutionary" sympathies of a large number of professors. "Their own benefit" becomes a more potent phrase when it is revealed that the so-called "clerical" administration left the 10,000,000-peso endowment inact, having eked out a precarious existence on the interest.

The rector, Dr. Fernando Ocaranza, a distinguished and scholarly gentleman, noted physician, teacher and historian, leader in the fight for autonomy in 1933 and before, was accused of the above "crimes" and called on to resign "so that the government will give us money to stay open." It should be noted, however, that the great majority of students supported the rector and the council and are still devoted to the cause of university autonomy and to freedom of expression in the institution. And from all recent indications the students intend to continue the fight.

Dr. Ocaranza did the only reasonable thing under the circumstances. After calling a meeting of the council on September 11 and directing a message to President Cardenas in which was pointed out the ways and means by which government help could be supplied and university autonomy preserved at the same time, the rector ordered the suspension of all classes until the issue had been definitely settled. Three days later the president sent a reply to Dr. Ocaranza in which it was plainly stated that renewed financial help from the government would mean restriction of university autonomy.

• • • •

HE declared also that the university must bring itself into line with the newest and latest educational tendencies already introduced into the primary and secondary schools. Children coming from these institutions should not be thrust into classes where political and economic theories opposed to what they already had learned be offered them. The implication was that such classes would make young Mexicans unfaithful to "revolutionary ideals."

Mexico's National University.

On September 17 the rector called another meeting of the council, and with it began a flood of resignations which has almost swept out of existence the faculty of the university. Let us see if the charges of "clerical and nonrevolutionary" sympathies hold up under examination. Dr. Ocaranza was the first to submit his resignation, and in it he denied the allegations of "the left wing" that he belonged to the Catholic faith, that he sought to augment his salary or that he was under the domination of Gomez Morin, whom he succeeded as rector. I might add that Dr. Ocaranza makes no secret of the fact that he is a rationalist professing no religious creed.

Following him came others who showed their resentment, in one way or another, toward the charges made against them. Alfonso Caso, recognized the world over as an authority on Mexican archeology and famed as the discoverer of the wonderful treasures at Monte Alban in Oaxaca, said pithily that "the university died today because it cannot live without liberty." This former head of the federal department of archeology, former director of the national museum and head of the university's department of history, is a Socialist who was forced out of his government post because he did not march in the widely publicized "Socialist education parade" of last December.

• • • •

THE philosopher, Antonio Caso, one of the country's keenest intelligences, followed his brother in resigning. He cannot be called "a clerical sympathizer" by the wildest stretch of the imagination. A Marxist in every sense of the term is Pablo Gonzalez Casanova, acknowledgedly the greatest authority on the native languages of Mexico, who resigned as head of the department of langauges. One of the saddest losses to the university is Ezequiel Chavez, head of the department of higher education and former subsecretary of education in the federal government. He is beloved of generations of students and, like the others, his beliefs are anything but clerical.

In addition to these men, none of whom can justly be accused of reactionary tendencies, the following scholars presented their resignations: Pablo Martinez del Rio, known to hundreds of Americans as director of the summer school; Dr. Enrique Aragon, director of faculty in the school of philosophy and letters; Jose Luis Osorio Mondragon, well-known geographer and director of the preparatory school; Trinidad Garcia, director of the school of law; practically the entire staff of the "Laboratorio de Arte," a university foundation comprising a group of scholars who have produced outstanding volumes on Mexico's art treasures, and the faculty of the school of architecture.

What is the meaning of this flood of resignations? It means, as I have been told by a number of those who have surrendered their positions, that Mexico is rapidly assuming those aspects of the totalitarian state which are featured in Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy today. Individualism is to be subordinated, not to a species of Latinized communism which is the last thing the party in power desires, but to a system which is dedicated to the regimentation of speech, thought and action, particularly when these three do not agree with the prevailing idea of government.

UNIVERSITIES are ever a source of political, social and economic ferment; it is in the bones of students and professors to be constantly on the watch for weakness in government and to be unsparing in criticism of those systems which have not stood the test of time and human experience. It is apparent that a group which believes regimentation to be the answer to Mexico's problems cannot tolerate in the heart of the country an institution dedicated to free speech, liberal thought and academic unrestraint.

These, then, are the conclusions to be drawn from the closing of Mexico's famous university, oldest in the Western Hemisphere, once great enough to send its teachers to the most notable cultural centers of the Old World. The future of the institution is dark, despite the reopening under alleged "autonomous" auspices; the future of the resigned professors who have rendered high service for miserable pay is still worse. As one of them said to me: "We are in somewhat the same position as the Jews in Germany. Few of us have money enough to leave the country, but still we are falsely accused of things of which we are not guilty. As the government controls the entire educational system, where are we to turn?"

And how will President Cardenas, the "left wingers" and the upholders of the totalitarian state answer the terse declaration of Prof. Antonio Armendariz, noted Socialist and fighter for agrarian and labor reform, who said upon resigning: "The National University has taught me to practice the revolution, not to declaim it!"?

• • • •

A NEW rector, Licenciado Chico Goerne, has succeeded Dr. Ocaranza under the latest dispensation. But the real battle for autonomy still rages, despite the fact that in recent weeks some of the resigned professors have returned "to help until the university can replace us." Most of the others, however, continue to follow the example of independent minded scholars like Dr. Antonio Caso, who, when elected by acclamation to the perpetual directorship of the School of Philosophy and Letters, declined it on the grounds that university autonomy and academic freedom were things of the past, and thus his conscience would not permit him to accept the position.

The problems of Mexico are many and troublesome. It is unfortunate, both for her and for her children, that the government has seen fit to force the resignation of so many good citizens who have devoted, and who would continue to devote their lives to the education of the young men and women who would greatly aid Mexico to become the leading nation of Latin America.

No End of Books

"Ah, Love, Let Us Be True . . ."

ANYONE looking over the field of the American love story must be struck with the way it divides up into a number of very definite acres. One acre which need not delay us long, is the Sweet and Sappy—exemplified in all its saccharine glory in the women's magazine and the novels which most frequently get into the movies. Another is the Foreign Color Acre, wherein the authors, with what must be a certain abashment at ascribing high and genuine passion to their own cousins in their own town, run off to Carcassonne or the Rhine or China or the Pueblo, Cajun, or Galway countries, and set up the idol there. In both these acres, it can at least be said, the passion is taken quite seriously, is not laughed at.

Then comes the Insect-on-the-Pin acre, in whose broad purlieus the authors snicker at the loves of garage men and shop girls, or point out the tinny hollowness of love among the opera-singers and literati (even here preferably European,) or flatten the love-life of the Middle West into something as interesting and exciting as a grocer's bill. Most assuredly, these last authors either feel superior to their characters (and thus they write into their pages only a sliver of their own real convictions or hopes, and are guilty of false witness), or else they are pale, belated derivatives of that bitter and adolescent disillusion belonging to the E. Hemingway-A. Huxley school (which Joseph Wood Krutch once castigated so memorably).

But for a love story, which deals with Americans who got beyond high school, who are neither "local color" types nor exotics, and who take love as something real and basic in the world, where on earth would you look in our time? I should not have brought up the embarrassing question if that kind of a book were not lying beside me.

• • • •

RAYMOND HOLDEN'S "Chance Has a Whip" (Scribner, $2.50) might, unwisely, be called a piece of Victorian romanticism. It is undeniable that Leda Putnam and Hendrick Fillmore hold the world well lost for love, that their credo lies in Matthew Arnold's sounding adjuration, "Dover Beach:"

"Ah, love, let us be true
To one another! For the world, which seems
To lie before us like a land of dreams,
So various, so beautiful, so new,
Hath really neither joy, nor love, nor light,
Nor certitude, nor peace, nor help for pain;
And we are here as on a darkling plain
Swept with confused alarms of struggle and flight,
Where ignorant armies clash by night."

Yet Mr. Holden, sagaciously, has not allowed the book to be romantic. He has made his heroine and hero into rounded, credible, fully contemporary people—the one the daughter, 26, of a Buffalo steel magnate, with a character so vivid and generous that her previous light loves have but deepened it; the other at 35 the general manager of Putnam's company, unhappily married, successful in business and yet borne down by the very sensitive man's sense of vague guilt and self-distrust. Moreover, with a fine hand for the scene, Mr. Holden has set them at the front of the modern stage of corporation management, labor trouble, boom and crash, all such large factors of the day. And more yet, he has interlocked his characters so firmly and justly with these factors that no gap lies between—if stocks and bonds and strikes are "real," then there is nothing "romantic" about the love between Leda and Rick.

• • • •

THE title, "Chance Has a Whip," supported by an introductory sonnet of Mr. Holden's, is not the happiest of choices. For it draws extra attention to the very large amount of acts of fate which fall upon our protagonists' head. This donation of accident is Mr. Holden's right, and he leads it quite shrewdly into the line of the characters. Yet one cannot help thinking the novelist's license is a little bit stretched when we find, surrounding two people in one book, the varying fatalities of divorce, abortion, acute peritonitis, the slaughter of Leda's father in a strike, the suicide of Rick's 13-year-old daughter, the death, though accidental, of an old flame of Leda's at Rick's hands, and the final gratuitous slaughter of Rick in the midst of an irrelevant jail-break. There is just a bit too much of the "darkling plain" here.

Yet all this bulks chiefly in the listening—we are not going to remember it. What we take from the book is rather Mr. Holden's understanding of fine-grained people in the modern chaotic world. With drama, with sympathy, with a kind of long-drawn yet not-to-be-skipped analysis, he shows us that the pangs and joys of humanity are not off at the other side of the world, not in types conveniently below his vantage point, but alongside him on his own plane. That is very honest for an author. It must be more than a nine days' wonder that in such a world, on such a level, he can find still genuine and truly moving the cry, "Ah, love, let us be true . . ."

The Once Over

Avon Boy Makes Good.

Hollywood has discovered another cinema writer. His name is Shakespeare.

• • • •

The Bard of Avon has become the white-haired boy of California.

• • • •

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" has just been screened at a cost of more than a million and a half. And all temptation to put in a G-man, some machine gunners and a screeching police car have been resisted.

• • • •

Not only that, but it actually got out of Hollywood and into the cinema theaters without having the name changed to "Flaming Elves" or Passionate Sprites."

• • • •

There is no fight shown in which tables are overturned, no character says, "Come up and see me some time," no child actress imitates Shirley Temple and there are no scenes showing de luxe night clubs.

• • • •

Tickets to the opening night performance in New York were $11.50 box office, and it looked like opening night at the Metropolitan Opera House. Most of those present were lovers of Shakespeare, but there were plenty of people who were not sure whether "A Midsummer Night's Dream" was by Billy Rose or Bernard Shaw.

• • • •

If the dream makes money in pictures, Hollywood will complete its plan for going Shakespearian in a big way. It is just a question whether the leap from Mae West to Titania can be made profitably.

• • • •

In the next few years the cinema may rid the movie fans of the idea that Ariel and Oberon are names of apartment houses.

• • • •

The day when the masses think of Coriolanus as some kind of rash and of Bassanio as a musical instrument may be nearly over.

GinghamClub's New Maestro Is Phil Lynch

Troika Has Gala Opening; Ames and Revere Remain at Shoreham.

By Chanticleer.

The band is playing once again at the Gingham Club.

After a late summer "quiet" period, Childs' rendezvous on Pennsylvania avenue is aglow with after-dark lights. Last night was the gala opening, which means that a goodly chunk of the young folks already know that Phil Lynch has brought to Washington a grand orchestra. And that Sally English (whose very easy-to-look-upon countenance is to be found elsewhere on this page) is a notable addition to Washington's post-sundown routine.

Phil Lynch is already known to radio listeners who have heard him from WOR in Newark. And in case you dined not so long ago at Childs' Paramount Restaurant on Broadway, you'll recognize him at once as the same Phil Lynch who entertained Childs' guests of the Great White Way. The boys come to Washington from four months at the Childs Boarwalk Restaurant in Atlantic City.

A swell evening—that gala opening at the Troika last Friday. The handsome supper room was filled long before the distinguished list of entertainers made their appearance and the overflow was accommodated in the French room.

From the moment Karavaieff announced Dena Larena, the "Russian Nightingale," to the "Flying Trapeze" of Johnny Blue as he trundled his midget piano about the floor tinkling out requests, the show was what is commonly known as a "wow."

The star attraction is Ethel Pastor, who makes a triumphal return to the Troika, and be it said now: La Pastor's new season will be no less successful than last. Bernard Kundell practically makes his violin cry (as any Gypsy violinist should) . . . Diloff brings down the house with his songs of the steppes . . . and Karavaieff twirls and spins his way to appreciative cheers of the customers.

Ames and Revere are being held over at the Shoreham ballroom. They're the dance team commonly referred to as "the second Castles," so expert is their performance. They're formerly musical comedy stars and come to Washington from New York's St. Regis. The Emerald Sisters, the "three little knockabouts," give you something different in acrobatics. For novelty dance numbers—Mariona Lane. And for vocals as Barnee directs the band—Leroy Kiser, the Shoreham's new tenor, who has become a permanent attraction.

Saturday night was birthday night at the Dude Ranch, out Berwyn way on the Baltimore pike. Mr. J. K. Smith, of the Philadelphia Smiths, had himself a birthday party at Milton Barrett's nightery; and not to be outdone, Mr. W. F. Simmons, of the Wilmington Simmonses, celebrated an anniversary also. This is just an idea for Washingtonians who may not want the uplanders stealing any thunder from the home precincts. By the way, did you notice the striking resemblance of Ralph Garren, ye olde Dude Ranch baton waggler, to Paul Whiteman? Which reminds me, too, that a new band shell, not unlike the river shell used by Hans Kindler, is being built for the Garren group.

One of the young gentlemen of the press was bemoaning what he termed the peculiar technique employed by night spot moguls here in Washington. "Now there's Enders and Borgia, for example," quoth he. "In Chicago, Enders and Borgia are in constant demand. First they knock 'em cold at the Blackstone. Then they go to the Drake for a couple of months, and then to the Bismark and from there to the Blackhawk Restaurant. They're literally stealing time from the Chicago admirers to appear for Pete Macias at the Heigh-Ho. But do you think another club here would continue their appearances for Washingtonians after they leave the Heigh-Ho? Nope! The other impresarios bring in new teams instead." All I can say is that Enders and Borgia are about the smoothest you'll ever see. Long wave Chicago

We're an easy nation to pick up with. Now there's Michel Michon, for example. Michon has been in this country just seven months, has been in Boston and Philadelphia with the Chakov group and once starred with the Moscow Art Theater. At the Club Volga Boatman, where he is barytoning for the supper crowds, Michel advises through his interpreter, Nicholi Vastilieff, that he thinks Washington is the cream of the lot of American cities. Incidentally, he's looking for an apartment. When you drop in at the Volga Boatman some night this week, pass your apartment suggestion along to Vastilieff.

That fellow Lou Fink leaves the La Paree tomorrow and you really don't want to miss him. How about luncheon there, with Emery Daugherty and Marie Fowler and Ray Beck and all the floor show folks, this noon? In fact, there isn't a dull moment at the La Paree all afternoon. Murphy and Reynolds fill the afternoon hours with distinctive melodies.

It's the "sweetheart of Paris" and "Broadway's best baby" at the Madrillon this week. And that's something. Paris and Broadway! They're Jeannette Vallon, dancer, and Dorothy Wentworth, smart tap dancer. And Leon Brusiloff will talk to you by the hour of his new vocal find—Annette Miller—of the blue velvet voice. In the meantime, experienced gourmets gather at the Madrillon for viands, which only continues the arguments of "fun or food" as the chief attraction which pertains between Leon and Boss Peter Borras.

• • • •

They've got Ray Nelson doing it now. Meaning that the Willard's bamboo room's popular young vocalist is doing chorus after chorus of Cole Porter's new "A Picture of Me Without You." Jimmy Santmyer (who used to play the piano for Broadway theater orchestras) is back from a hurried trip with more bright tunes for his bamboo room orchestra. At the Willard corner, Franchot Tone set many a heart a-flutter the other evening. But pooh! Franchot only gave time to Joseph, the gentleman who mixes a dash of this with a little of that.

The stay-up-lates have found a new delight in the Club Habana's sizzling hot breakfasts, between 2 and 4 these mornings. For the earlier part of the evening, there's Sandino and Fairchild, in town for no other purpose than to dance for the Habana's patrons—and how the patrons like them, too. Throughout the evening—Moe Baer and his incomparable orchestra with Russ Cullen, Tony Alongi and Frank Flannigan in novelty interludes—and Bert Granoff raising the cheers with "Cheek to Cheek."

You really shouldn't want to be tied in knots, but that's the way Andrea and Jeanette's whirlwind dance at Maryland Club Gardens leaves you. They have been doing it in London, Rome and points east and west. Really colossal, as the folks will have it. And there's Luzak, winth his fiddle, and Fran Trappe with his accordion. For dancing—Al Barkley and his New Yorkers. (That magnificent whisky sour shaker upper is Earnest.)

Popcorn, boys and girls, plain ordinary popcorn. Buttered and salted popcorn, colored popcorn, cheese-covered, colored popcorn, other way. Or if you have a particular recipe for popcorn, trot it out and they'll serve it that way. Just another innovation at the Mayflower Lounge. You'll like it. During the luncheon hour—Antonio Bove and Jack Minovich, with harp and violin for your dreamy moments.

Club's 'First Night' a Gay One

The gala opening of Childs Gingham Club last night found Phil Lynch and his orchestra at hand to lead the merriment—and with Sallye English as vocalist. Below—One of the Emeralds, whose novelty knockabout acrobatics are pleasing the customers at the Shoreham this week.

Virginia Will Reserve Parkway Tax Rights

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., ct. 15.—Virginia will insist that liquor and gasoline rights be specifically reserved to the State in deeds conveying the Shenandoah-Great Smoky Mountain Parkway lands to the Federal Government, Attorney General A. P. Staples said today.

These tax rights will be kept by the State, the Attorney General said, in order to make certain that gasoline stations within the area gasoline stations within the area will not have a trade advantage over other stations by being permitted to sell gasoline without a State tax. Stations on Federal reservations, such as Army posts, have this right.

Child Injured in Fall.

Falling in a hole dug by her playmates, Patricia Davis, 4, 216 First street southwest, received a fractured left leg yesterday. According to police, the girl was injured on a lot at First street and Independence avenue southeast. The hole, they said, was about 5 feet deep. Patricia was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

Watching Them Make Pictures.

Hollywood, Oct. 15.

MARLENE DIETRICH has finished playing a scene in "Desire." She steps out of the role of Dietrich, the glamorous, and relaxes in her camp chair. Frank Borzage, who directs with ease, smokes his pipe as cameramen and electricians arrange a new setup. Gary Cooper strolls about the set.

Miss Dietrich calls to her pretty colored maid, Jasmine. "Now," she says. It is little past four in the afternoon. Jasmine appears suddenly holding a large tray. Marlene is going to serve tea and cake. She invites Cooper and Director Borzage to join her. She tries to make Cooper take a piece of cake. "I baked it myself," she says. And what's more, she really did. Marlene Dietrich would rather cook than act; often she prepares the meals for the servants in her house. She never asks you what you think of her acting, but she does ask you what you think of her cooking.

And this flicker will be great for those who are amused by marquee signs, for it will read: "Dietrich and Cooper—'Desire.'"

• • • •

Fred Astaire is busy trying to manufacture new dances for his flicker, "Follow the Fleet." On a sound stage a man sits at a piano playing a new Irving Berlin tune. Astaire listens and then quickly does a few steps. He stops. "Play that part again," Astaire says. The piano player complies. Astaire does the steps again, adding something, perfecting. He does this over and over with a song. When he has outlined a routine he starts to rehearse it with Herman Pan. They dance together, again perfecting.

Pan is playing the role that you will see Ginger Rogers do on the screen.

• • • •

THERE isn't any performer who appears to be more in command on a set than Mae West. The director, cameraman and the players look to her after a sequence. She really has the big say.

Miss West is pleased with Director Raoul Walsh. "I've been trying for some time to get him. You know, I always get my man," said Miss West. She dismissed several cameramen before she got one who photographed her the way she wanted.

Mae West hasn't an elaborate portable dressing room on the set, as many stars have. She has a small, temporary dressing room, which belongs to the studio, and is shifted from set to set, when the occasion demands. In another flicker a chorus girl used the same dressing room. Mae travels from the set to her dressing room in her limousine, license number 3-W5, chauffeured by Chalky, a colored ex-fighter. When the day's shooting is finished, you can see her auto parked near the executive office; Mae West is there discussing the picture with Producer Bill Lebaron. She certainly has the say about her pictures.

• • • •

A studio policeman stands on guard outside the sound stage, but the known newspapermen can get in. On the set Miss West is seldom seen studying her lines. She generally steps before the camera knowing them, for she is one actress who writes her own lines.

While waiting for a set-up Miss West will provide interesting conversation. Tell her a new Mae West gag and you're her friend. This day an extra player tells her a Mae West gag she hasn't heard. She is pleased. She tells the extra: "Come to my dressing room later and I'll give you an autographed photo."

• • • •

A GROUP of chorines, are standing on desks doing a dance for the flicker, "Collegiates." It is a schoolroom scene, and the dancer, Betty Jane Cooper, is the school teacher. It is her task to stand on a desk and teach the girls new steps; it's that type of a picture.

The chorines and the teacher are doing the routine for Dance Director Leroy Prinz. The camera is turning. Every now and then a girl will stop dancing to slap her own face or hit her leg. The camera has to stop. Director Prinz wants to know what is the matter. "There's a fly around here," shout several girls.

Everyone is trying to get into pictures—why should a fly be the exception?

For a number in "The King of Burlesque," a typical burlesque chorus was needed. Girls were cast for this number if they appeared to be the burlesque type; yet, there is not one girl in it who came from burlesque.

• • • •

The majority of them are beefy. It seems that the men who find their fun on a runway prefer them that way. The gals, not as graceful as the elephants in "The Big Broadcast," did a dance and sang a typical burlesque song. They sang "Whose Big Baby Are You?" addressing the lyric, personally, to a man in the audience. There was one girl among these burlesque dolls I knew. She is Elsie Larson. I spoke to her. "What are you doing when you finish this?" I asked. "Oh, I got another job waiting for me," she answered. "I go to Metro to play one of the beauties in "The Great Ziegfeld."

Broadway

By Ed Sullivan

Gadabout.

New York, Oct. 15.

Add skyline effects: The tall, dark exciter in the Cole Porter front line, very easy on the orbs, Kay Sloan . . . Margaret Adams, the stunner who looks every inch the Princess . . . Anita Louise who swipes your breath in "Midsummer Night's Dream" . . . Kay Picture, a streamliner in N. T. G.'s new Paradise show . . . Darker of the Patou Sisters, who dance for Joe Moss . . . Ketti Gallian, the looker with Fox flickers (but she wishes that daffy femme wouldn't send American beauties) . . . Claudett Colbert, who illumines "She Married Her Boss" . . . Mrs. Harrison Williams, who really knows how to wear clothes . . . June Knight, when she makes her "Jubilee" entrance in a cloak of royal blue, a grand frame for that silver wig . . . Joan Crawford's picture, in color, that hangs above the Capitol marquee . . . Janice Jarrett, the ciggie model, who brings a breath of Texas to the Stem . . . Mrs. Kim Moran Moffett, Jim's wife, with a complexion to match the pearls that hug her slim throat . . . Mrs. Bernie Cummings, wife of the Hotel Roosevelt leader, dark and Spanishly, with the Grade AA ankles of the town.

Statistical static: Flash Scroveney is in very bad at New York University, and will not win his letter . . . By distorting a newspaper survey made by the school and making it appear that it was a comparative rating of Broadway columnists, Scroveney has forfeited any chance of any degree, except the third . . . The survey, incidentally, fits into the Scroveney spot news department, as it was made in February, 1934, almost two years ago . . . Ed Sullivan is listed at 366 . . . Brisbane, 365 . . . Walter Lippman, 280 . . . H. I. Phillips, 245 . . . Pegler, 201 . . . Ripley, 182 . . . Runyon, 91 . . . Bob Davis, 18 . . . the late Will Rogers, 12 . . . Grant Rice, 6 . . . Benchley, 3 . . . It's not an exhaustive survey, evidently, but it's fun to play.

Aside to Joan Crawford: The very best wishes to you and your fine young hubby. You, in particular, deserve a world of credit. In this century, anyone who can hang his or her name in the heavens, spelled out in stardust, deserves respect and attention. It has been my experience that nobody kicks you upstairs, and you never realize how heavy you are until you grab hold of the bootstraps and try to lift yourself. You are entitled now to the happiness that always has just eluded you. If you will concentrate, the two of you, half as intently on making a success of marriage as you both have concentrated on making a success to make-believing—it will be no contest. So to you two kids—the best of everything from now on.

Notes: The Abe Lyman-Eleanor Powell engagement will dissolve into nothing weaker than friendship . . . Add elopements: William Scherman and Dancer Alice Rowland, Editor Herbert Stahl and Rhys Caparn, sculptress; Painter Daniel Martson and Lois Boutemain, Lennie Miabella and Carol Eenders, the oriole; Joseph V. Bendix and Muriel Weiss, E. Waln Hare and Jeanne Shearer Gibbs . . . Leo Friede has those alimony blues again . . . Charlie Moskowitz takes off for a Bermuda vacation, well earned, unless theater labor troubles pop up as a steamer stymie.

Dr. Collinson Quits State Health Post

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Oct. 15.—Dr. John Collinson, chief of the bureau of vital statistics of the State Department of Health, resigned several weeks ago, it was revealed today when an examination to fill the place was announced.

Dr. Collinson left to become assistant chief statistician for bureau of vital statistics of the Federal Bureau of the Census.

The new examination was announced by State Employment Commissioner Harry C. Jones. The salary begins at $3,000 a year. Applicants must have an education equivalent to that of a medical school and also must have experience in statistical inquiries and investigations. Applications will be received until October 30.

5 P.M. is a test of how you FEEL

"How do I feel.... Swell!—why do you ask?"

IT is all so simple, too! That tired, run-down, exhausted feeling quite often is due to lack of a sufficiency of those precious red-blood-cells. Just build up these oxygen-carrying cells and the whole body takes on new life... food is really turned into energy and strength ...you can't help but feel and look better. S.S.S. Tonic restores deficient red-blood-cells... it also improves the appetite and digestion. It has been the nation's standby for over 100 years... and unless your case is exceptional it should help you, too.

Insist on S.S.S. Tonic in the blood-red cellophane-wrapped package. The big 20-oz. size is sufficient for two weeks' treatment... it's more economical.

Here's Very Fast Way to "Alkalize" Acid-Indigestion Away

Amazingly Fast Relief Now from "Acid Indigestion" Over-Indulgence, Nausea, and Upsets

If you want really quick relief from an upset or painful stomach condition — arising from acidity following over-eating, smoking, mixtures of foods or stimulants—just try this:

Take—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a full glass of water. OR — 2 Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets, the exact equivalent of the liquid form.

This acts to almost immediately alkalize the whole stomach content. Neutralizes the acids that cause headaches, nausea, and indigestion pains. You feel results at once.

Try it. AND — if you are a frequent sufferer from "acid stomach," use Phillips' Milk of Magnesia 30 minutes after meals. You'll forget you have a stomach!

When you buy, see that any box or bottle you accept is clearly marked "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

"It's in the Air," Starring Mr. Benny, Is a Hi-hi-de-ho Comedy of Stratosphere

Get-Rich-Quick Motif Revived In Brisk Farce

Ted Healy Steals Comedy; 'Venus' Is No More; About Showshops.

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"It's in the Air" seems to me a good deal of the time to be precisely that.

This, you may or may not recall, is the first individual starring vehicle for Jack Benny, accorded a "sneak preview" at Loew's Fox Theater following the final Sunday night projection of "Here's to Romance," the regular screen feature for the week.

The considerable portion of the audience that had been present at the last regularly scheduled performance of the evening and remained in their seats for the showing of the extra, surprise feature, seemed to enjoy it hugely.

"It's in the Air" is a screen fable that reverts to the "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" formula, originally contrived by George Randolph Chester, for its motivation and comedy climaxes. Jack Benny is cast in the role of the present-day Wallingford and Ted Healy has the role corresponding to that played in the earlier yarns by Blackie Daw. There is, to be sure, considerably more frivolity in the present piece than in the Chester figments, but, even so, it frequently fails to crackle with that spontaneous—or seemingly so—wit for which Benny is famous on stage and radio.

The Hilarious Healy.

Mr. Healy's reactions to heat and cold in this frenzied flight are among the rough-house comedy gems of the entire goings-on. Mr. Pendleton doesn't do so well as an altitude balloonist, either.

There are, needless to say, a host of others concerned in the ground developments of the story, which is, in the last analysis, just another excuse for outraging all the laws of logic and sense.

Just why Mr. Benny is starred, I shall probably never know. He is more of a stooge for Mr. Healy than Mr. Healy is for him.

When "It's in the Air" opens on the Fox screen next Friday as the regular fetaure of the bill, it may be relied upon to tickle the risibilities of those who laugh easily as well as those dyed-in-the-wool fans who go about the serious business of their amusements in the firm conviction that Mr. Benny can do no wrong.

Benny Is Restrained.

Mr. Benny, as a matter of fact, is not so much the star of the picture, from a comedy point of view, as Ted Healy. He is, rather, a debonair and lackadaisical sort of straight man who has a romantic chore to perform in recapturing the affection of his wife, estranged by the fluctuating fortunes of her gambler-racketeer husband, who is being pursued up and down the continent by a dumbbell G-man, impersonated with robust half-wittedness by Nat Pendleton. Una Merkel is the girl in the case, with Mary Carlisle as the juvenile "menace" attempting to threaten the marital status of Miss Merkel's husband.

The action culminates in a stratosphere flight that is expected to be a remunerative phoney, but which turns out to be on the level. This balloon sequence is one of the funniest in the picture, thanks as much to the gas-bag itself as to the frantic clowning of the Messrs. Benny, Healy and Pendleton.

The balloon, in attaining an unprecedented altitude of 14 miles, passes through violent electrical storms, hurricanes and blizzards and through it all remains as rigid and unpliable as if it had been hewn out of solid rock or moulded by the cement-pourers of Boulder Dam!

So the satiny beauties of "Venus in Silk" are no more. There is probably more to the permanent closing last Saturday night of this Laurence Schwab production of the Holz Viennese operetta than meets the eye or assails the ear, but accepting the explanations of its sponsors at their face value, it seems to have been scrapped by a strictly minority vote. Some 100,000 paying patrons witnessed "Venus in Silk" during its American career and liked it. St. Louis, Pittsburgh and Washington—on the first night—acclaimed the work as one in which virtues far outweighed the minor defects that obtruded themselves.

But 100,000 cash customers can't be right!

On the testimony of a scant handful of Broadway "experts" "Venus" was junked. On the strength of this evidence, there is no "road." Show business is still a slave of the fetich of Broadway, a more or less mythical kingdom on the outskirts of the United States!

Round-the-World Bookings.

Following immediately upon the international premiere of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in New York, London, Vienna, Sydney last week, the Max Reinhardt picturization for Warner Brother of William Shakespeare's classic fantasy will soon be seen in 10 additional foreign cities. The picture has been booked for early presentation in Shanghai, Manila, Zurich, Calcutta, Barcelona, Havana, Montreal, Toronto, Buenos Aires and Zagrit in Jugoslavia.

No other picture in the history of the cinema ever has had such an extraordinary world-wide reception as this. It is not only an exemplification of the universal appeal of Shakespeare, but a fine tribute to the artistry of Dr. Reinhardt.

In addition to the foreign engagements, which merely scratch the surface of the projected world coverage of the "Dream," ten American cities of importance have contracted for the two-a-day presentations of this film. Washington is included in this group, with the engagement to start in the National Theater the night of Sunday, October 27. The others are Philadelphia, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Boston, Baltimore, Albany, Dayton and Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Karns, Mr. Karns being one of the cinema's most reliable comedians, arrived in Washington late yesterday afternoon and are stopping at the Carlton Hotel. It is their first visit to the National Capital and they ars giving it nowhere near time enough! En route from New York to New Orleans, they plan to leave Washington this evening around 6 or 7 o'clock.

The World Crumbles!

It should be borne in mind that tomorrow is the day upon which Manager Hardie Meakin, of RKO-Keith's, will unfurl one of the most stupendously spectacular screen productions that have come along to the Capital through the many seasons of the motion picture's ascendancy. "The Last Days of Pompeii" is the familiar title of the film, but its disclosures are by no means so well known, since they are a departure from, rather than a rigid adherence to, the well-known Bulwer-Lytton work.

This amazing example of the camera's unparalleled flexibility already has been accorded a cursory recapitulation in this space and will not again be gone into at any length now.

Is Visual Triumph.

It cannot be too vigorously emphasized, however, that whatever the shortcomings of a story that does not quite measure up to its sublime possibilities, "The Last Days of Pompeii" is one of the greatest visual triumphs the celluloids ever have achieved.

Too much stress cannot be laid upon the reverential manner in which the agony of Gethsemane and the Cross have been treated. The complete story of Pontius Pilate and the Christ is interwoven into the action of the drama's major movement without the person of the Nazarene ever being revealed upon the silver sheet. Seldom has such directional discretion been shown.

"The Last Days of Pompeii," in short, is a picture that commands both startled interest and profound respect.

Manager Stephen E. Cochran, of the National Theater, returned to town last evening in time for the opening of the Katharine Cornell engagement in "Romeo and Juliet." Panjandrum Cochran, it will be recalled, has been in the Middlewest, launching Miss Ethel Barrymore on what promises to be a record-breaking transcontinental tour in his own revival of W. Somerset Maugham's "The Constant Wife." The Panjandrum's wire to this desk on opening night—last Thursday in East Liverpool, Ohio—said in part: "I fear we are in for a long and successful tour." Tough luck!

Dotlettes and Dashettes.

Rufus Blair, of the Paramount West Coast publicity department, a genial and welcome caller yesterday afternoon . . . Used to be associated with Edgar Waite, one-time publicist for the Loew interests here . . . Says Ed is doing okay for hisself . . . So is Mr. Blair . . . Card from Arthur and Helen De Titta, of Fox Movietone News, says they are having a swell time in Los Angeles and Hollywood and are just taking a train for San Francisco . . . Some people have all the breaks . . . Note from Maxine Doyle—prompted, one suspects, by Mr. Melcher—telling all about her plans . . . More later about this and them . . . Dorothy Ross makes debut tonight as dancer at the Theta Pi Sorority banquet at the Mayflower . . . Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Ross, he a former light operatic tenor, radio announcer, pianist and organist . . . Remember? . . . Players Club of Central Community Center holding public tryouts tomorrow night at 8 for leading role in "The Poor Nut" . . . Presumably in Central auditorium.

First-Aid Note.

I know a million of 'em!

Classic Drama Superbly Done By Noted Star

Katharine Cornell Brings New 'Romeo and Juliet' to National Stage.

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Drama was exalted in the National Theater last night.

Revealing new dimensions of the perfected artistry that already had caused her to be acclaimed as the high priestess of drama in America, Miss Katharine Cornell brought to the familiar cadences of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" a new quality of human warmth, a new tempo and temper and a new and thrilling vibrance.

Not alone was the tragedy of youthful love imbued with a galvanic reality by Miss Cornell's performance, but the entire cast seemed keyed to the high pitch of her portrayal of the role of Juliet.

There resulted a "Romeo and Juliet" the like of which Washington has not seen before in this generation, if ever in the distinguished annals of the theater in the National Capital.

Combining, but not condensing, the 23 scenes of the play into two swiftly moving acts, Miss Cornell has accelerated the action of the drama almost to the point of the present era's demand for speed. There is no longer the tediousness of attenuation or the detachment of poorly articulated detail.

"Romeo and Juliet," as Miss Cornell presents it, is compact, concise and compelling, adding to the beauty of its lilting lines, the excitement of its climacteric passages and the profoundly affecting tragedy of its somber denouement a shrewdly coordinated and continuous progression of incident and a multiplied intelligibility.

Settings Aid to Drama.

Only a revolutionary departure from traditional methods of staging and an admirable abandonment of conventional settings and investitures could make possible the celerity with which the present acting version of the play is presented. The 23 scenes succeed one another with no greater delay than is entailed by the raising and lowering of curtains and drapes.

If they fall anything short of the cumbersome trappings to which the Shakespearean eye is accustomed from long usage, they more than make up for the deficiency in their artistic harmonies of color and lighting and their complete fulfillment of every practicial purpose of supporting, rather than submerging, the spoken lines.

It is, in fact, in the superb reading of the Bard's speeches that Miss Cornell's interpretation of the classic tragedy as a fine concert of blended effort stands pre-eminent. Emphasis has been laid with acute intelligence upon the humanizing of the rounded periods of Shakespeare's measured poesy.

Thus the balcony scene, the usual standard by which all Juliets are judged, becomes a fascinating study in purling words instead of a study in ornate landscaping of old Italian gardens.

Balcony Scene Is Superb.

As a beautiful and unbelievably young Juliet, alive with the burning fires of her first flaming love, Miss Cornell invests this loveliest of all the scenes in the play with an eagerness, a buoyant youthfulness and impetuosity that illuminate it with a new and vivacious brilliance.

Wholly in this spirit of ardent and headlong wooing is the Romeo of Maurice Evans, a newcomer to the American stage, whose choice is a cause for huzzas and dancing in the streets.

"Romeo and Juliet," in its present version, is adroitly devised to disclose two distinct facets of the art of each of the players. The first act, until the last moment or two, that encompass the death of both Mercutio and Tybalt, is dedicated to the livelier emotions that stem from the sheer joys of living; the second plunges at once into the bitter moods of disillusionment, death and disaster. It is a fine tribute to the competence of the cast with which Miss Cornell has surrounded herself that no recession from the first act's superlative playing is permitted to mar the second's compounded dramatic power.

Miss Cornell and Mr. Evans necessarily bear the brunt of the play's reading and tragic impressiveness and each performs the allotted task with that consummate skill that stamps the artist, but they are by no means alone in the supremacy of their work. Mercutio, the Nurse, Friar Lawrence and Capulet are played with comparable perfection by artists of the first rank.

Ralph Richardson, who also announces the tenor of the play as Chorus, is a Mercutio of ideally blended qualities. Wit, ribaldry and imagination cascade from his lips in lashing rivers of rhyme. Not in years has the Queen Mab speech, with its whimsical recital of the stuff of which dreams are made, been read with such finely shaded understanding and effect. No less comprehensive in conception or meticulous in excution is the superior portrayal of the Nurse contributed by Florence Reed, who makes of this cackling, chuckling, compassionate crone a symbol of faithful devotion that won salvos of applause last evening.

Charles Waldron, a fixture in Miss Cornell's companies and an actor of the first water, is on a parity with the star and his gifted associates in the clarity of his reading, the fidelity of his portraiture and the conspicuous naturalness that marks not only his but the work of every member of the company. Charles Dalton is similarly to be lauded for the vigorous worth of his performance as Capulet.

Move to End MeritSystem Is Disavowed

Lawson, G. O. P. Leader in Maryland, Drew Criticism.

Says He Cited Flaws in Way Law Has Been Carried Out.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Oct. 15.—William P. Lawson, chairman of the Republican State central committee, denied today he had urged abolition of the merit system in a speech before a Republican club.

Meanwhile, however, reports of Lawson's address last night had drawn quick criticism from two sources.

Lawson said that far from urging abolition of the system, he had advised Republicans to take examinations and qualify for jobs under it. His speech, he said, merely pointed out some of the defects of the system and "the chicanery which has been practiced under it up to the past few months."

Sees 1,600 Jobs.

Lawson said that the merit system was established by the Democrats in order to protect their appointees from dismissal when the political wheel had turned.

There is a normal turnover on account of resignations and deaths of about 400 persons per year in the State service, he said. If Republicans are alert and qualify under civil service for all these jobs, 1,600 places can be filled during this administration, he declared.

Lawson made his speech as Gov. Harry W. Nice was making public a letter in which he declared his intention of upholding the merit system against all attacks.

The governor took his stand in a letter to Willis R. Jones, attorney for the Maryland Classified Employes Association. At the same time he declined to remove Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Walter R. Rudy.

The criticisms of Lawson's address came from Attorney-General Herbert R. O'Conor and Walter H. Buck, chairman of the executive committee of the Civil Service Association of Maryland.

They objected strenuously to Lawson's assertion the merit system law was "unfair" and was hindering efforts of the Republican administration to replace Democratic State employes.

Cites Unfairness.

Addressing the Twenty-sixth Ward Republican Club last night, Lawson said:

". . . It is obvious that the Democratic Party, which is the father of the merit system, should sing its praise because it certainly is giving reward to Democrats by keeping them in office and depriving the Republican Party of its rights to make appointments or jobs . . . without first laying some charge against someone in office . . . to create room for a Republican.

". . . The law is unfair because it has never been properly carried out, especially with regard to this part . . . which says that positions should be made without regard to political or religious affiliation, and yet, we all know that all the jobs under the Democratic regime were filled only by Democrats."

O'Dunne Rules Stock Owners Pay 100% Levy

Assessment in Baltimore Trust Case Fixed by Magistrate.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Oct. 15.—A 100 per cent assessment of their statutory stockholders' liability was ordered today against the 3,920 stockholders of the old Baltimore Trust Co. by Circuit Court Judge Eugene O'Dunne.

Judge O'Dunne held the stockholders liable to the full amount of their possible statutory liability and ruled that a least the full amount of the face value of such liabilities, or more, would be necessary to defray the deficiency between assets and liabilities of the bank.

Heavy Deficiency Seen.

At its face value the assessment would produce $6,250,000. During the hearing Judge O'Dunne had commented that the testimony of bank and receiver officials indicated the deficiency at least $9,000,000.

Receivership officials and attorneys said, however, only about half, or less, of the face value of stockholders' liability could be expected to be collected because of the financial condition of stockholders.

The institution was closed at the beginning of the State-wide banking holiday.

Stresses Liability.

"I hold that the stockholders' liability is one to which they must now respond, at the time when the call upon them is made, based upon the differences between assets and liabilities during the period they were stockholders in fact (or in equity), and which the receivers now have need of to satisfy in whole or in part the valid claim of depositors and other creditors within that class," Judge O'Dunne's opinion said.

Judge O'Dunne said his opinion did not consider the decision of a Washington County judge holding stockholders liable only for losses during the exact period they were stockholders. That case now is pending before the court of appeals.

$300,000 Hospital Opened to Visitors

New Hagerstown Building Inspected After Dinner.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 15.—Hagerstown's new $300,000 hospital building, recently completed, was formally opened for inspection tonight after a dinner, attended by 300 of the leading citizens and members of the medical profession throughout the Cumberland Valley.

The principal speaker was Charles F. Neergard, New York City hospital consultant, who directed construction of the seven-story fireproof building, which has been declared the finest hospital building in western Maryland.

In the new institution preventive and curative medicines will be housed under one roof, as the health department and its many units will have headquarters in one wing.

The building will be open for public inspection tomorrow, Thursday and Friday, after which patients will be transferred from the old Washington County Hospital building adjacent. The old building will be remodeled and used for administrative offices and laborities.

County Votes Oct. 26 On Corn-Hog Program

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 15.—Washington County farmers will vote October 26 on the corn-hog adjustment program for next year. The 1935 contracts expire November 30. Every corn and hog grower is eligible to vote in the nation-wide referendum to determine whether their crops are to be curtailed again.

According to AAA officials, feed supplies, livestock numbers and the market outlook are such that the next three years may see a greater increase in hog production than has ever taken place in any similar period. Some increase from the present low level of production is desirable, AAA officials say, but there is real danger expansion will become excessive unless another adjustment program is inaugurated.

Hunter Kills a Bear Advancing for Battle

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Luray, Va., Oct. 15.—Bears are becoming numerous in the Massanutten Mountains of Page and Shenandoah counties. Thomas Painter, Luray, killed one weighing 180 pounds Saturday near the Lee highway, 5 miles west of here. Painter said he had to shoot the bear to save his life. When he first saw the animal it was standing on its hind legs. The young hunter stood his ground as the animal advanced and when it was 5 feet away Painter shot.

Not far from where Painter killed the animal Ashby Dinges, living in Shenandoah County, had a battle with another that was trying to get a pig out of Dinges' pen.

Drive Mapped For Concerts At Cumberland

Mrs. C.W. Donnelly to Lead Campaign for $1,000 Patrons for Series.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 15.—The first effort in four years to bring a series of concerts to Cumberland will be inaugurated October 28, with a week's campaign for membership in the Community Concert Association.

Charles W. Donnelly, campaign chairman, will direct 100 or more workers during the six-day drive for 1,000 members.

An audience of 700 must be assured before artists are engaged and the local goal has been set at 1,000. At least three notable concerts will be presented and there may be as many as four or five if membership justifies them.

Team captains in Cumberland will include Victor Baumann, Miss Margaret E. Coulehan, Walter G. Fisher, Arthur G. Fowler, Mrs. William L. Keller, Mrs. James W. Kirk, Franklin W. Kremer, Mrs. George Legge, Mrs. John S. MacDonald, Mrs. I. Claude Martin, Mrs. Herbert Platt, Lloyd Rawlings, John E. McDonald, Mrs. George F. Reitar, Mrs. John F. Schaidt, Mrs. Richard W. Trevaskis, Mrs. Harvey H. Weiss and Miss Dorothy Willison.

Officers and members of the executive committee are: President, Mrs. Arthur N. Golladay; vice presidents, Mrs. Thomas P. Richards, Mrs. Joseph P. Franklin and Dr. S. Lua Syckes; secretary, Mrs. Thomas L. Popp; treasurer, R. Mason Hill; membership chairman, Mrs. C. W. Donnelly; dinner chairman, Mrs. F. Brooke Whiting, and publicity chairman, J. William Hunt.

If arrangements can be completed, the season will open November 13 with the Westminster Choir.

Danville Scene Of Methodists' Session Today

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Danville, Va., Oct. 15.—The annual meeting of the Virginia Methodist Conference will open here tomorrow at Main Street Methodist Church. Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon will preside. The prelate arrived today and met presiding elders and the budget committee at his hotel.

The session, which will be attended by approximately 600 lay and clerical delegates, will last until Monday morning, when the list of appointments will be read. The impression is that there will be numerous changes this year owing to the fact that the rule requiring presiding elders to resume pastorates at the end of four years is to be applied.

No outstanding question of policy confronts the conference this year, although it is expected that Saturday night, when temporal and social service will be discussed, a position will be taken against legalized liquor.

The new Methodist hymnal is to be offered at conference. A special commission drew it up and eliminated a number of the Wesley hymns. The new song book contains favorites of the North and South denominations.

Among the speakers are Dr. Angie Smith, of Washington Place Methodist Church, who will be heard Wednesday, Thursday and Friday; Bishop Paul Kern, of Greensboro, N. C., who will speak on missions Wednesday night, and Dr. William F. Stidger, of Boston, who will discuss Christian literature Thursday night. Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, of Washington, will speak on temperance and social service Saturday night.

Tax Sale Continues In Anne Arundel

200 More Pieces of Property Disposed of.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 15.—Auctioneers disposed of about 200 more pieces of Anne Arundel County tax delinquent property today, 25 pieces being sold to private purchasers and the balance reverting to the county.

The sale, which began yesterday, will continue through the week, or until all properties on which taxes for 1934 or prior years are unpaid have been disposed of. So far the auctioneers have sold properties in three of the eight county districts.

Since the sale began about 75 pieces of property have been bid in by individual purchasers with the balance of the 400 offered going to the county commissioners. In addition approximately 275 belated taxpayers have paid their obligations in the last two days and had their property struck from the sale list.

Bay Official UpholdsNice Bridge Stand

Graham Declares U. S. Holds Up Financial Assistance.

Statement by Tydings and Radcliffe Is Contradicted.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 15.—Albert D. Graham, chairman of the Chesapeake Bay Authority, today confirmed a statement by Gov. Harry W. Nice that the Federal Government had withdrawn financial assistance on the bay bridge project. Senators George Radcliffe and Millard E. Tydings had branded the report of withdrawal of Federal aid as "erroneous."

"The key to the whole situation is the $4,500,000 outright Federal grant, and if our Maryland Senators can prevail upon Secretary Ickes to make a definite commitment to the authority, I believe the balance of the money can be secured through other regular channels," Graham asserted.

Graham Upholds Nice.

The report came as an aftermath to a statement by the two Maryland Senators, after conferring with PWA and RFC officials, that they received assurances that Federal funds were still available. They contended that Gov. Nice's statement was "erroneous" and that "nobody in Maryland has stepped forward with a binding offer to make a contribution, and for that reason primarily the matter has stood still."

"The Governor's statement correctly sets forth the present status of the bay bridge project," Graham said, pointing out that originally it was the authority's statement made public by the Governor at the request of the authority.

"It seems to committee members that Gov. Nice has gone as far as he could when he promised to urge the special session of the Legislature, to be called the early part of the year, to match dollars with the RFC. He, of course, is powerless at this time to anticipate what the Legislature will do," Graham continued.

Jesse Jones' Conditions.

"Secretary Ickes never committed the PWA grant of $4,500,000 and the last time the committee had a conference with the Secretary he strongly emphasized this fact. Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, agreed to lend $2,500,000 or $3,000,000 upon the following conditions:

That $4,500,000 be obtained from the PWA.

"That Maryland contribute $2,500,000 or $3,000,000.

That the RFC be given first mortgage on the bridge and tolls.

The bay structure, costing approximately $10,000,000, is said to have President Roosevelt's approval as a national project, not as a State project, with a request by public works authorities that if it is approved, additional money already available will be utilized for the project.

Error Victim Freed, Then Held to Jury

Writ Releases Prisoner, But Vagrant Charge Is Preferred.

Judge Remands Manning to Jail in Bel Air to Await Panel.

By the Associated Press.

Bel Air, Md., Oct. 15.—A prisoner sent to the House of Correction by mistake won his freedom from there today, but was remanded to jail here to await grand jury action on charges of vagrancy.

The prisoner was Harry Manning, race track follower, who alleged he was sent to the House of correction without trial after a magistrate had erroneously written his name on commitment papers.

Release Order Signed.

Circuit Court Judge Walter W. Peston signed an order for Manning's release from the house. Manning was represented at the hearing by State Senator Harold E. Cobourn.

Judge Preston ordered that after Manning's release he be taken before Magistrate Thelma Whitney, then committed to the Harford County Jail to await action of the November grand jury.

Kelly Pleads Guilty.

Manning and Frank Kelly recently appeared before Magistrate Whitney, secretary to Senator Cobourn, on charges of vagrancy. Pleading guilty, Kelly was sentenced to a year in the house. Manning asked a trial and was ordered held for the grand jury.

When the commitment papers were made out, however, Manning's name, as well as Kelly's, appeared on them. Dr. Leroy Wright, warden of the house, said the papers were proper and he could not release Manning except on court order.

New Panel Ordered To Hear Will Suit

Bequests to 4 Nephews of H. C. Stuart Fought.

By the Associated Press.

Lebanon, Va., Oct. 15.—Judge McLemore this afternoon granted a defense motion to quash a special panel of ten men called for service in the Russell County Court contest over the will be former Gov. Henry Carter Stuart, and ordered a new venire summoned today.

The motion was offered by attorneys for four nephews of Gov. Stuart, against whom his only daughter, Mrs. Mary Stuart Harmon, of Hollywood, Calif., has brought the action. Defense lawyers pointed out that the panel had been called by Judge A. G. Lively, who has disqualified himself because of connection with the drawing of the disputed will.

Mrs. Harmon seeks to prove that the four nephews of hte wealthy landowner and cattleman exerted "undue influence" to obtain a will in their favor.

Eva Martin Queen Of Fall Festival

Thurmont Fall Show to Be Held Oct. 25 and 26.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Thurmont, Md., Oct. 15.—Plans for the second annual autumn festival and farm show here October 25 and 26 were made at a committee meeting last night.

Miss Eva Martin, Thurmont High School student, was named Queen Autumn II. The coronation ceremony will be held the second day of the festival.

Members of Miss Martin's court selected to date are Georgetta Kemp and Clara Jean Creager, Thurmont, and Janet Hoke, Emmitsburg, princesses; Patsy Trexler, Thurmont; Pearl Valentine, Emmitsburg; Kathleen Buhrman, Lewistown; Vivian Shorb, Rocky Ridge, Evelyn Renner, Catoctin Furnace, pages. A costume parade will follow the coronation ceremonies.

Mine Workers Dominate Holt, Says Hallanan

Committeeman Renews His Battle With West Virginia Senator.

By the Associated Press.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 15.—Walter S. Hallahan, Republican national committeeman, today reopened his political warfare with Senator Rush D. Holt with a declaration here that Holt is dominated by United Mine Workers leaders, and is the union's choice for the next governor.

Hallanan addressed Republican women of the State yesterday, speaking of Holt in vigorous terms. He said it had been publicly reported and "as yet undenied" that John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers president, "has definitely decided that his candidate and that of his West Virginia agent, Van A. Bittner, will be Senator Holt."

Is Miner Leader.

Bittner is chief U. M. W. A. representative.

If the young Senator should get the governorship, Hallanan charged, "Bittner's domination of West Virginia would be absolute. * * * We would witness a political monarchy more ruthless than that which has operated in the State of Louisiana for the last several years."

Satirizes Holt.

The Republican committeeman in making his charges called Holt "the boy wonder who silences Mars, the god of war, with a single breath, salvages West Virginia's road program with a newspaper interview, keeps a stenographic force busy typing his inane statements to the press and who, all the while, miraculously finds time to work on that long overdue utility report."

Holt while in the legislature headed a committee investigating utilities. Recently he announced the report will be handed to the next session.

Meat Tester ForHospitals To Lose Job

Maryland Will Abolish Post Held by Humphrey Wolfe.

Agriculture Department of U. S. to Perform Inspection.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Oct. 15.—The position of meat inspector for state institutions, filled by Humphrey Wolfe, who has been under fire from the State Survey Commission, will be abolished October 31, State Employment Commissioner Harry C. Jones said today.

Wolfe, a member of the board of managers of the Springfield State Hospital for the Insane, also had the part-time job as inspector. In a recent report, the commission said that "stringy and tainted" meat bearing Wolfe's inspection stamp had been received at the institution.

Jones said that Harry Mertz, State purchasing agent, had made arrangements for the meat inspection work to be taken over by the Federal Department of Agriculture, without cost to the State.

Jones said Gov. Harry W. Nice concurred in the decision to abolish Wolfe's job. Shortly after the report was made public, Mertz, Wolfe's superior, asked the commission for a copy of the report dealing with Wolfe's inspection activities.

In announcing abolition of the post, Jones said:

"The position of meat inspector in the office of the State purchasing agent will be abolished effective October 31, and the duties which have heretofore been performed in connection with the inspection of meat supplies for State institutions by Humphrey D. Wolfe, who for many years has performed this service, will thereafter be taken over by the Federal Department of Agriculture. * * * This action was taken after consultation with the Governor and with his approval.

"The Governor concurs in the opinion that the wards of the State in hospitals and other institutions should have the best foods that can be purchased with the money available, and no better guarantee can be given than that Federal inspectors certify to the specific performance of contract on the part of bidders on supplies of this character."

Alderman, Police Chief Settle Differences

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 15.—Alderman Robert L. Grove today said differences with Chief of Police Allen S. Bartgis had been settled following a dispute at the fair grounds last week when Allen refused to make an arrest ordered by the Alderman.

Alderman Grove had threatened to press charges against the Chief of Police before the police committee of the Board of Aldermen. Grove charged that Bartgis refused to arrest the operator of a dice gambling device. Bartgis contended the State's Attorney alone had jurisdiction. Another city policeman arrested the operator who was fined $25 in magistrate court.

SEC Denies It Suggested Chrysler Sales

Fear of Corner in the Stock Had Been Reported.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 15.—The New York office of the Securities and Exchange Commission today issued a denial of published reports that the commission had sought to induce sales of the shares of Chrysler Corporation, fearing a technical corner. R. G. Page, regional administrator at New York, said:

"Any statement that the commission or any commission employe had asked E. F. Hutton & Co. or any other house or individual to sell Chrysler or any other stock is entirely false.

"Because of the repetition in the press of the above-mentioned statement and because of the possibility that the appearance of the statement would be used to affect the market in Chrysler, it was decided at the local office that a departure from the usual rule of secrecy would be made in this case.

"No investigation of the trading in Chrysler has been made," Page continued. "No reason for believing in the existence of a technical corner is known."

Informal Inquiry Made.

"In view of the rapidity of the rise in price and the large volume of trading, an informal inquiry was made of several houses known to be interested in the stock as to whether they knew of the existence of any distribution which might be the cause of a market operation and whether they had any knowledge of other facts which might lead to the belief that an illegal operation was taking place."

Page said that no decision had been reached as to whether or not there will be any further investigation of trading in Chrysler.

"Such inquiries as the present one," Page said, "are being constantly made when a particular stock attracts attention and have no unusual significance."

Chrysler shares today rose $1.75 a share to a new high since 1929 at $83.50, then lost part of the gain. The shares have more than doubled in price in the past several months, having sold earlier this year as low as $31.

Advance Expected In Price of Bread

New York, Oct. 15 (AP).—A gentral advance in the price of bread will be made by baking companies shortly, according to reports in trade circles. The advance, if made, will follow Ohio and Pennsylvania, where prices have been raised 1 to 2 cents a loaf. Increased cost of flour and shortening are said to be the principal reasons for the advance.

6½% Decrease In Shipbuilding

Germany Alone Gains in Production.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 15.—A decline of about 6½ per cent in the world production of merchant vessels is shown by the returns of Lloyd's Register of Shipping for the quarter ended September 30. Lloyd's figures cover the construction of all ships of 100 gross tons and upwards in all maritime countries except Russia, for which no authentic reports are available.

Germany alone shows an increase in shipbuilding as compared with the tonnage under way at the end of June last. For Great Britain and Ireland the decrease in production is about 5 per cent, and for the United States nearly 35 per cent. Of the total shipbuilding throughout the world at present 44.3 per cent is in Great Britain and Ireland, and about 1½ per cent in the United States.

Cloth Mill Dividend First in Five Years

Sanford, Me., Oct. 15 (AP).—The Goodall Worsted Co., cloth manufacturers, announced today the first dividend since 1931, a payment of $1 a share to be made November 1, to stockholders of record October 14.

Col. William N. Campbell, president of the company, said the concern looked forward with "greatest optimism" to 1936 business.

"Advance orders for 1936 are coming in with such volume as to be truly sensational," Cambell said.

Largest Silver Cargo Reaches Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Oct. 15 (AP).—The largest single cargo of silver bullion in the history of the Philadelphia port—$1,800,000 worth—is due today on the American Banker of the American Merchant Lines. Precautions are being taken to insure its safe transfer to the United States Mint, where it will be converted into coins, presumably for South American nations.

The silver, made up of 3,110 bars, was consigned from London to the Chase National Bank of New York.

Bell System Has Gain of 297,000 Telephones in 9 Months.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 15.—American Telephone & Telegraph Co. reported today consolidated net income applicable to its stock of $79,882,071 for the eight months ended August 31, equivalent to $4.28 a share. This compares with $71,946,519 or $3.85 a share in the first eight months of 1934.

The report covers net income of American Telephone and its 24 associated Bell companies and is after depreciation, interest, Federal taxes and all other charges.

Walter S. Gifford, president, reported that the Bell System made a net gain of 297,000 telephones during the first nine months of the year in contrast with a net gain of 227,000 during the corresponding period of 1934.

The report of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. alone for the nine months ended September 30 showed net income of $90,634,658 after all deductions, equivalent to $4.85 a share of capital stock. This compares with revised net income of $90,084,802 or $4.82 a share in the first nine months of 1934.

For the quarter ended September 30 the indicated net income of American Telephone Co. only was $31,600,252, after charges and Federal taxes, equal to $1.69 a share, against $28,937,118 or $1.55 a share in the preceding quarter and $28,168,105 or $1.61 a share in the September quarter last year.

The total number of toll and long distance calls during the first nine months of this year was about 3½ per cent greater than in the corresponding period of 1934, the report stated.

James L. Kilpatrick, president of the New York Telephone Co., largest operating subsidiary of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., reported today that results for the first three weeks of September indicate that the company's net gain in telephones for the month as a whole will probably be greater than for any previous September since 1929.

Anaconda Debentures Heavily Oversubscribed

New York, Oct. 15 (AP).—Heavy oversubscription of the new issue of $55,000,000 Anaconda Copper Mining Co. 4½ per cent debentures was reported today shortly after public offering was made of the issue by Blythe & Co. and a group of associates. Proceeds from the issue will be used to retire existing bank loans.

Highlights and Background Of Financial News and Trends

Stocks Surge Upward, Scoring Many New Highs in Active Trading; Bonds Strong; Wheat and Corn Advance.

By Frank MacMillen,
Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, Oct. 15.—In the most active session since July 26, 1934, the stock market pushed upstream today through cross currents of profit-taking. Shares met the heaviest selling during the first hour as blocks of several thousands changed hands, leaving the ticker tape two minutes behind floor trading.

The ability of the market to withstand the shock of liquidation provided encouragement, brokers said, and subsequent demand drove a number of issues up to new highs for 1935. Several issues rose 1

Curb Advances Despite Selling

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 15.—Despite profit taking in scattered sections of the list, a number of substantial advances were recorded on the curb market today. Trading was active during rallying phases, transfers expanding to approximately 384,000 shares compared with 290,000 yesterday.

Pittsburg Plate Glass advanced around 4 points to close at 87⅞, while Sherwin - Williams and Parker Rust Proof were about 2 higher at 120½ and 54¾, respectively. Other gainers of fractions to around a point included Bunker Hill & Sullivan at 47½, Lake Shore at 47⅛, Humble Oil at 54⅝ and American Gas & Electric at 34⅞.

Feels That Vandy Is Better Thans Its Conquerer, Temple

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—This department was an eye witness to more football last weekend than one ordinarily sees in three weeks. On Friday night, I saw Temple play Vanderbilt at Temple Stadium in a terrific thundershower. The next afternoon was spent at Franklin Field watching Yale given Penn a thorough trouncing, and the following day I watched the two New York professional teams, the Giants against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Yale-Penn game was the best of all. There is hardly a greater thrill than to see a football team come from behind and win a ball game against a heavier and more powerful team, especially after being scored upon in the first three minutes. The Temple-Vanderbilt thing was a mess and should have been postponed.

Poor Dave Smukler! I guess he is a pretty good football player, but you can never prove it by me, or even by the experts. I saw him smothered last year by Bucknell in a rainstorm, and again last Friday night, with the experts down to see the Penn-Yale game crowd in the press box. He had a dreadful evening on another greasy, mucky field.

TEMPLE was lucky to win, 6—3, and Temple didn't win until they got Mr. Smukler out of there and put in some substitutes who worked the forward pass—lateral pass combination for a touchdown. Then they put Smukler back in again, and Temple promptly stopped doing anything.

They say that Temple would have done better on a dry field, because the prettily-timed Warner plays bog down in the mud. I think just the opposite. I was tremendously impressed with Ray Morrison's Vanderbilt team, and think it would have mur-6 dered Temple under decent conditions. Because Vanderbilt has what it takes to smear a Warner offensive, a great pair of ends in Capt. Bill Geny and a chap named Plasman, and a great defensive tackle in Hinkle.

The Vanderbilt coach is the Ray Morrison who brought Southern Methodist to its position of prominence in the football world with his brilliant forward-passing plays. The Vanderbilts couldn't do much throwing with the greasy ball against Temple, so they outplayed Temple in straight football. I figure Vanderbilt to beat Fordham by at least two touchdowns next Saturday.

THE Temple game was a dreadful affair for the spectators. There was a cloudburst over the stadium a half hour before the game began, just as the crowd was piling in. We all got soaked to the skin on the way in to the field. It simply pelted throughout most of the game. The stadium is open and the crowd sat, wet and miserable, to watch two great ball clubs slide and slip and fumble.

Nobody got his money's worth. The silly rule about the bayy being dead when the carrier's knee touches the ground would stop plays without a defensive man being close to the ball carrier. Once a Vanderbilt safety man was catching a punt and there wasn't a defensive end within 20 yards of him. He bent his knees to help make a cradle for the wet ball, caught it and held it. A knee touched the ground. Dead ball! He could have run 15 yards.

That Father Lumpkin, the Southerner who plays quarter back for the Brooklyn Dodgers, is a weather-beaten old coot. The last time I saw Lumpkin was three or four years ago at Columbus, Ohio. He was a professional wrtseler then. We all went to the rasslin' matches with the English Ryder Cup players, who were there at the time.

LUMPKIN was thrown or dove from the ring and landed on his head on the sharp edge of a wooden bench. He was out, and stayed out. He must have a very durable skull. He plays his pro football without a headgear. He was leading the interference and missing his blacks with great ferocity last Sunday. Had my first look at Stan Kostka, the Minnesota full back, now playing for Brooklyn. Plenty of football player. Two years of pro experience and he will be

Mrs. Johnson Is Downed, 5 and 4

Mrs. Hartig, Medalist, Bows to Mrs. Frost at Columbia.

Mrs. Scott Sets Pace as Favorites Win at Congressional.

BACK on her game following the loss of her crown in the Middle Atlantic championship last week, Mrs. David Clark cracked out a sparkling 79, 5 over par, yesterday in defeating Mrs. T. J. Johnson, 5 and 4, in her first-round match in the Army and Navy women's club championship.

Mrs. Clark, out in 42, shot the back nine in 37, serving warning to the other three survivors, Mrs. Charlotte S. Stern, medalist; Mrs. R. G. Guyer and Mrs. Philip Cole, that it will take super golf to defeat her.

Mrs. Stern eliminated Mrs. R. F. Thompson, 1 up, in a whipping finish. One down and two to go, Mrs. Stern took the seventeenth with a 3 and the same hole with a 5. Mrs. Guyer won from Mrs. F. G. Crips, 3 and 2, and Mrs. Cole outsteadied Mrs. F. L. Whitaker to win, 2 and 1.

This morning Mrs. Stern meets Mrs. Guyer and Mrs. Cole faces Mrs. Clark.

Results in other flights:

Second flight—Mrs. W. R. Woodward defeated Mrs. George Rice, 2 and 1; Mrs. A. B. McNabb defeated Mrs. Robert Jones, 7 and 6; Mrs. T. J. Ford defeated Mrs. P. A. Hodgson, 2 and 1; Mrs. J. A. Rogers defeated Mrs. G. M. Holmes, 7 and 6.

Third flight—Mrs. W. R. Slaughter, defeated Mrs. E. R. Hennins, 4 and 3; Mrs. C. P. Clark defeated Mrs. J. Y. York, 2 and 1; Mrs. J. B. Woolnough defeated Mrs. Clair Miller, 4 and 3; Mrs. R. G. Calkins defeated Mrs. W. A. Buck, 4 and 3.

Fourth flight—Mrs. L. P. Davis, bye; Mrs. L. V. Frazier defeated Mrs. J. M. Mathewson, 2 and 1; Mrs. J. C. Rasen defeated Mrs. J. S. Griffith, 2 and 1.

Mrs. B. C. Hartig, medalist, was eliminated by Mrs. Norman Frost, one up, in the first round of the Columbia Country Club women's championship. Mrs. Frost protected her lead after winning the sixteenth. They halved the seventeenth and eighteenth.

Mrs. J. W. Beller, former champion, defeated Mrs. G. Amick, 5 and 4; Mrs. H. R. Quinter turned back Mrs. C. D. Bills, 5 and 4, and Mrs. George B. McGinty overcame Mrs. H. N. Brundage, 2 and 1. Mrs. Frost will face Mrs. McGinty and Mrs. Beller will meet Mrs. Quinter this morning.

Other results:

Second flight—Mrs. A. C. Minnix defeated Mrs. Hugh Mackenzie, 2 and 1; Mrs. H. King Cornwell defeated Mrs. R. A. Lacey, 1 up, 19 holes; Mrs. E. D. Krewson defeated Mrs. W. C. Geleng, 6 and 5; Miss Marion Lum defeated Mrs. A. S. Gardiner, sr., 3 and 1.

Third flight—Mrs. B. G. Simpich, bye; Mrs. G. I. James, bye; Miss Mary Minnix defeated Mrs. W. T. Sinkiner, 2 and 1; Mrs. J. J. Darby defeated Mrs. H. T. Foley, 2 and 1.

Mrs. Don Scott, medalist, led a flock of favorites into the second round of the Congressional Country Club championship. She won easily from Mrs. H. A. Knox, 6 and 4.

Helen Dettweiler, Middle Atlantic finalist, overwhelmed Mrs. V. A. Welte, 6 and 5, and by the same count Mrs. Roland Mackenzie trimmed Mrs. Fulsom Jones.

Results:

First Flight.

Mrs. Don Scott defeated Mrs. H. A. Knox, 6 and 4; Mrs. Roland Mackenzie defeated Mrs. Fulsom Jones, 6 and 5; Mrs. F. G. Awalt defeated Mrs. George Goetzman, 8 and 7; Mrs. J. J. Cumberland Golf Title Captured by Dr. Heintz

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 15.—Dr. Karl P. Heintz, veteran golfer, won the fall championship of the Cumberland County Country Club over Frank R. Blaul, 9 and 8, in the 36-hole final. Heintz had a 79 in the morning to Blaul's 83, and stood 4 up.

Robert House won the championship of the third flight by defeating Edward M. Hanlon, 1 up on the nineteenth hole, while Martin D. Tenney, sr., defeated Peter D. Cooper, 2 and 1, for the championship of the second flight. Both matches were 18 holes.

Line-up Is Shifted By Green Terrors

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Westminster, Md., Oct. 15.—Western Maryland's line-up, which has been intact since the opening game, will be revamped considerably when the Green Terrors kick off to Bucknell Saturday afternoon in Baltimore Stadium, Head Coach Charley Havens announced the shifts after today's practice.

Bull Draper, a Washington youth, who has been out with injuries, will replace Jim Woodbury at left half back, while Red Balish will supplant Tom Pontecarvo at left tackle in the most important changes. Havens also intends to use two back fields instead of one against the Bisons.

Draper's return will enable Woodbury to return to end, his normal position, where the Terrors are short on players. "Yank" Benjamin's injury last week leaves the squad in need of a good pass receiver.

Runyan at Best In First Drill For P. G. A.

Shows No Signs of Let-Up; Others Earn Share in Spotlight.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 15.—Paul Runyan had his first look today at the rugged, treacherous Twin Hills course where he will defend his professional golfers' association title starting Thursday.

In his first practice shots, the diminutive expert from White Plains, N. Y., showed no sign of being off the "hot" game that brought him the money at the Louisville tournament last week.

While Runyan polished the power-saving technique he adopted three years ago and worked on a "brake" stroke to miss the gaping canyons that split the fairways, contenders for his crown were gathering.

The champion quickly took the gallery from some of the crack-shots who arrived days ahead of him, but other favorites were pulling in fast today to share the pre-tournament limelight.

Other Open Drills.

Close on Runyan's heels today were Tommy Armour, of Medinah, Ill.; Johnny Farrell, of Short Hills, N. J.; Johnny Revolta, of Milwaukee; Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa.; Alvin Kreuger, of Beloit, Wis., and Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J.

Runyan, who once tried with irregular success to equal his more rugged fellows in distance, explains now that he swapped power for accuracy, and used a stronger club than each shot required, hitting the ball with an easier swat.

Wood, whom Runyan defeated in last year's final, was getting a lot of sympathy for the "hard luck" he has been encountering. In 1933 he tied Denny Shute for the British Open and lost. Last spring he lost the august National in a play-off with Gene Sarazen, and in the P. G. A. last year lost on the second extra hole to Runyan.

St. Louis Eagles Quit Hockey Loop

Bard Buys Franchise; Has No Purchaser.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 15.—The St. Louis Eagles, plagued by financial difficulties last year, passed from the National Hockey League today when the board of governors purchased outright the club's franchise, players and rights.

The departure of the Eagles, who were owned by Ottawa interests headed by Redmond Quain, was tantamount to the final fade-out of the old Ottawa Senators, one of the four charter members of the National Hockey League at its inception 18 years ago.

The urgency of the meeting was due in part to the fact that the 1935-36 schedule had to be drawn today, including arrangements for the Stanley Cup playoffs. Calder said the league would operate as an eight-club circuit since there is no prospective buyer for the franchise. The regular method of qualifying the three top teams in each division for the playoffs would be in force, he said.

Petersburg's Team Choice In League

Triumphs Over Hampton and Woodrow Wilson Early Features.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

UNIVERSITY, Va., Oct. 15.—With two smashing victories to its credit, Petersburg High School stands out as the early season favorite to win the State football championship over the 14 schools in the reorganized Virginia High School Literary and Athletic League.

The Crimson Wave submerged Hampton, 19 to 0, Friday, after bowling over Woodrow Wilson of Portsmouth, 38 to 0, in the first round of play. John Marshall, Richmond, also remained at the top with two triumphs by outpointing Glass of Lynchburg, 7 to 6, Saturday.

Other contests last week resulted in a 7-to-0 victory over Newport News by Lane High School, Charlottesville, 1934 State champions, and the 20-to-0 defeat of Andrew Lewis, Salem, by Jefferson, of Roanoke.

When 10 of the teams clash in five conference games scheduled for Friday and Saturday, all will have been in league competition with the exception of Washington-Lee, Clarendon, a newly admitted member to class A football.

Emory, Richmond In State Feature

Wasps' Sophomore Outfit Surprise of Year.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Emory, Va., Oct. 15.—Emory and Henry College's Wasps—standout team of the ppalachian region in the point of development—will furnish the feature attraction for Virginia football fandom next Saturday when they meet Richmond University at Richmond Stadium.

Figured completely out of the running for the State championship at the start of the season, because of the loss of numerous veterans from last year's club, the Wasps have developed amazingly with sophomore material.

Directed by Pedie Jackson, Henry has attained victories over Carson-Newman, King College and Chattanooga, while losing a game to George Washington University that Jackson believes could have been put on the win column had the "breaks" favored Henry instead of the Washington aggregation.

Battered Kansas State Hopes To Trim Nebraska, Recalls '34

By the Associated Press.

MANHATTAN, Kans., Oct. 15. The Kansas State College football team appeared convinced tonight that history might repeat Saturday when the Wildcats meet the slightly defeated but still powerful Nebraska Cornhuskers here.

Last fall the Wildcat machine sputtered and backfired at the start, but rolled onward with increasing momentum until, in the last game, it defeated a highly favored Nebraska team, 19 to 7, and annexed the Big Six Conference title.

This year the Wildcats, under a new coach, Wesley Fry, started in the same manner as last. After defeating Duquesne, 12 to 0, they fumbled away a game to Fort Hays State, 3 to 0, then lost to Marquette, 14 to 0.

Meanwhile, Nebraska bowled over Chicago and Iowa State impressively and remained great in defeat, losing last Saturday to Minnesota, 12 to 7, in an orgy of thrills.

Everything would point to a Nebraska victory Saturday. That is, everything but the recollection of 1934 events—and that recollection is buoying the hopes of Rry and his Wildcats.

Instead of undermining the Wildcats' spirit, the Marquette game last week appears to have been a tonic.

Minus their ace full back, Maurice "Red" Elder, and with their two veteran tackles, Paul Fanning and Don Flenthrope, incapacitated in the first uarter by injuries, the Wildcats put up a good battle against a team which, on the basis of performance to date, ranks with the leaders in the Middle West.

"I as not disappointed to date and I think the team will come down the stretch in good shape," Fry declared today. "I believe Saturday's winner will be the team with the most hustle."

Fry expressed hope Elder, Fanning and Flenthrope would be ready for action Saturday. With them in the line-up Nebraska may be due for a stunning surprise. Even without them, Rry believes it still will be anybody's ball game.

Two School Games Set in Cumberland

Friday and Saturday Frays Are on Schedule.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 15—Cumberland's three scholastic football teams will see action this week-end with two of the games billed here.

The program opens Friday with Pennsylvania Avenue High meeting Broad Top Township High, of Defiance, Pa., at Community Park under the lights. Penn may be without the services of Ed Filler, left end, who received a badly bruised hip in Saturday's game with Waynesboro High.

LaSalle Institute is host to Lilly (Pa.) High, 26 to 0, Saturday, while Hagerstown was crushing Charles Town (W. Va.) High, 32 to 0. On the basis of other scores this year, Allegany appears to be in for the most trouble Saturday, as Hagerstown has its best team in several years. The Hub City is undefeated in three starts.

Duke Meets Colgate In Durham Next Year

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Durham, N. C., Oct. 15.—One of the most colorful and annually outstanding teams of the East will invade this State next fall when Andy Kerr's Red Raiders of Colgate meet Duke's Blue Devils in Duke Stadium, September 26.

Duke officials scheduled the game after having received many requests from fans in this section to bring a big Eastern team to North Carolina.

Norton Plays Coeburn.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Norton, Va., Oct. 15.—Norton, leading the Wise County football conference with three consecutive victories, will entertain Coeburn this week.

Paddock Starts Football War With U. S. C.

Ex-Sprinter Criticises Alma Mater; Coach Invites Him to Huddle.

By the Associated Press.

LONG BEACH, Calif., Oct. 15.—Charley Paddock, whose feet once ruled the dashes, criticized the football coach of his alma mater, Southern California, today, and promptly was invited by the mentor, Howard Jones, to "tell me something about football."

Paddock, in a sports column he writes, said Jones must "begin to show results again."

At Los Angeles, Jones, whose tea mlost to Illinois, 19 to 0, last Saturday, expressed willingness "to go into a huddle with Paddock anytime he wants to tell me something about football."

"Jones must change his system, or his plays, or his technique," Paddock wrote.

"He has the material."

"Paddock is a track man and is simply making a lot of statements he can't back up," Jones remarked.

Paddock said Jones should go unless he can produce a winning combination, adding, "His teams are bogging down again just as they did at Yale, at Ohio State, at Iowa, at Duke."

60 at State Teachers Open Soccer Practice

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Oct. 15.—With 60 girls reporting for practice, fall field hockey activities began this week at the Harrisonburg State Teachers College. This number includes only a few former players, but new players and student transfers from other schools will contribute strength to the 1935 varsity, according to Miss Margaret Shank, Harrisonburg, who is captain, and Miss Helen Marbut, coach.

The autumn schedule of games is incomplete, but probably will include contests with Sweet Briar and Westhampton Colleges.

Detroit Team Seen Intact For 1936

Owner Navin Refuses to Commit Self; Waits Until December.

May Buy an Outfielder; Expected, However, to Depend on Youth.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Oct. 15.—It looks as if the Detroit Tigers believe the team that brought home the bacon this year will be good enough to keep it in 1936.

Frank J. Navin, club president, who won his $100,000 gamble that Mickey Cochrane would prove one o fthe game's greatest player-managers, isn't committing himself on the question of whether the Tigers will attempt a definite strengthening program next season. But from the way things look now, Detroit will start the 1936 campaign with practically the same club that won two American League pennants and a world's championship in two years.

Can't Tell Now.

"I can't tell a thing about it now," parried Navin when asked if he were ready to dig down deep for established players. "I might know something more after the December meetings, but right now I don't see any such players on the market. But I can't tell now."

It is possible he might get out his checkbook if a hard-hitting outfielder should appear on the ivory market, but those close to the Bengal front office believe that the Tigers will depend largely on young, promising ballplayers, just as they have for several years.

When the Tigers go to spring training camp at Lakeland, Fla., the club song may well be "It All Depends on You-th."

Young Hopefuls.

Among the many young hopefuls trying for jobs will be Don Ross, with Beaumont last season; Gilbert English and Chester Wilburn, of the Portland Club on the West Coast; Chet Laabs, hard-hitting youngster from Milwaukee, all infielders, and Jake Wade and Pat McLaughlin, of Beaumont, who will try for places on the pitching staff. In addition, Dixie Howell, Rudy York and Francis Parker, who wore Tiger uniforms for a while last year, again will be back.

Brown University—Its All-Time Honor Roll

Pollard, Negro Star of 1916, Given Post in Backfield.

By George Trevor,

Nationally Known Football Authority.

WHILE the shadow of College Hill falls across Rhode Island's ancient capital, so long will these Brown University football immortals be remembered in elm-lined Providence. Brown's football history can roughly be divided into two parts—the Ned Robinson era, from 1898 to 1925, and the modern Tom McLaughry epoch. Under the genial Robby, an institution on the Hill, Brown developed many of its greatest players.

The Negro race has never produced a half back to match Fritz Pollard, the dusky shadow who slipped like a phantom through the Yale and Harvard teams of 1916. So steeply did he bank when pivoting that he seemed to be running on one ear and his tremendous speed-burst left tacklers biting the turf. Pollard could take it, too, as he proved in the losing battle against Colgate on a muddy field when his spirited tackling prevented an even worse rout.

Willis Richardson, idolized by old-timers, played quarter back and half back in the 90's. Little Richy, 5 feet 5 inches tall, could dart like a minnow this way and that. Nobody has ever surpassed him at running back punts. He would lay back until the last minute, then shoot in and grab the ball from under the noses of enemy ends. Jackson Keefer, the ideal triple-threat man, transferred from Michigan and lived up to his Western reputation at Providence. Yost has always regretted Keefer's switch of allegiance.

Earl Sprackling gets the all-time quarter back berth without any argument. This clever field general specialized in returning kick-offs for touchdowns, as the Carlisle Indians could tell you. He was a dashing figure in the 1910 victory over Yale. Pound for pound they don't come any better than Shrimp Crowther, the 106-pound midget whose fearless play belied his frail appearance. This little game-cock loved to josh his giant foes and usually had the last laugh. He ran through Harvard for a touch-

Favored Toro Nancy Easily Takes Feature Sprint at Laurel

Last Quarter Speed Wins For Filly

Double Pays Only $17 as Heavily Backed Horses Triumph.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 15.—Toro Nancy, whose sire once lost a Preakness by a nose for E. B. McLean's stable, drove to an easy victory today in the Worthington, a 6-furlong sprnit for 3-year-olds. Installed the favorite, Toro Nancy bounded to the finish line two lengths and a half in front of Nautch which, in turn, had a margin of a length on Marcella Miss.

Ridden by Jockey Les Balaski, Norman W. Church's color-bearer was allowed to settle into her best stride while Nautch and Marcella Miss were staging a battle for the doubtful honor of setting the pace. When Balaski asked the filly for speed, Toro Nancy had it. She fairly burned up the track in the last quarter to win going away in impressive fashion.

Time Creditable.

Both Nautch and Marcella Miss were tiring at the end but stuck to their guns to take money places. The race was run over a dull track in 1:13 2-5, creditable time.

Toro Nancy's ability was no secret in the betting and she paid a mere $4.40.

Two well played horses teamed to provide the winning daily double ticket of $17. The combination was Tehani in the first race and Miss Rainbow in the third race.

The familiar cerise and white of the Vanderbilt stable were borne to victory in the first race by Tehani, in the role of favorite. Ridden by Jockey Sammy Renick, Tehani fought her way up with the leaders and then scored a nose decision over Miss Jones. Had the race been two yards longer, however, they would have hung the number of Flaming Swords in the win bracket, for the daughter of Man O'War came with a closing rush that made the other two appear to be standing still. Tehani paid $4.20.

Bromora, a son of Brooms, scored a somewhat surprising victory in the second race over the steeplechase course. The big gelding led Troyer and Soughton Boy to the wire. Only five horses started and they all finished. Troyer set most of the pace but could not resist the strong closing of F. Ambrose Clark's representative. Bromora paid $12.30.

Wins Going Away.

Miss Rainbow, favored by light weight, came through in the third race to lead Helios, Sunned and nine others across the line at the end of a six-furlong test. Apprentice Jockey Dunbar rated Miss Rainbow off the pace-setters and then turned her loose in the stretch and she won going away. Miss Rainbow paid $7.80.

Hardly a lip apart in a thrilling finish, Sandstone was declared the winner of the fourth race over Still Alarm. Third and well beaten came Flying Amazon. Still Alarm came from far back to get in the struggle with Sandstone but the smaller of the two horses outgamed his rival. Moose Peters rode the winner which paid $8.40.

Good Visibility came from far back to take the sixth race from Must Be and Energetic Lady. The Mars filly, trained by Preston Burch, of Washington, paid $5.20.

Wise Advocate, the property of Hugh Waldrop, of Bladensburg, Md., scampered home to win the seventh race. Treasury Key and Respect were closest at the finish. The winner rewarded with a $7.80 mutuel.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TEHANI, $4.20, $3.30, $2.70; MISS JONES, $10.90, $5.10; FLAMING SWORDS, $3.40.

TEHANI, sluggish in reaching her best stride, was placed to punishment in the last five-sixteenths, secured racing room on the inside of the leaders entering the home stretch and, closing gamely after entering contention, outfinished MISS JONES. Latter, prominent from the beginning, displaced the leaders to gain a brief lead in the closing furlong, but failed to withstand the winner. FLAMING SWORDS closed with a tremendous rush from a slow beginning. She finished extremely wide. PERMIT was used up racing MATE TEA into defeat, and she stopped. MAKEIT was not good enough after making her effort at the turn. MATE TEA began tiring after five furlongs. BRANDY FIZZ went evenly. The others were outrun.

SECOND RACE—About two miles. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Patuxent Steeplechase. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:04. Off at 2:06½. Winner, F. A. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROMORA, $12.30, $5.20, $4.60; TROYER, $3.60, $3.00; SOUGHTON BOY, $3.90.

BROMORA, full of run and a keen factor for the first mile, went to the front at the tenth fence, opened up a winning lead after the twelfth jump, but had to be kept under strong urging nearing the finish. TROYER fenced nicely over the first eleven fences, fell back at the twelfth jump, came again, but made a poor clearing at the last jump. SOUGHTON BOY moved up willingly after going a mile, but could not menace the first two. ANCHORS AWEIGH began tiring after a mile and a half. LEI had no excuses.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates in chute. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:28. Off at 2:31½. Winner, T. Malone's b. f. (3), by John P. Grier—Oceana. Trained by W. E. Dorn. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:49 3-5, 1:15 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS RAINBOW, $7.80, $4.80, $3.80; HELIOS, $14.20, $7.00; SUNNED, $5.10.

MISS RAINBOW, in close pursuit of the leaders when kept out in the firmer footing, closed willingly after reaching the home stretch and wore HELIOS down in the final sixteenth. HELIOS, going in his best form and a prominent contender early, retained a slight lead when straightened into the home stretch, but bore in ominously. SUNNED had a lot taken out of him racing HINIGHT into defeat, but held on gamely. BELLE GRIER saved a lot of ground entering the home stretch, but was timidly handled all during the last furlong, only for which she might have been closer. MOUNTAIN ELK could not better his position through the last five-sixteenths. MISS PREMIER went well for a half-mile then tired. CHIRAC showed no speed at any stage. HINIGHT stopped after a half-mile.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $900; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:11. Off at 3:13½. Winner, J. MacLeod's dk. b. or br. f. (2), by Caruso—Dreamstone. Trained by G. H. Strate. Value to winner, $675; second, $125; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:49 1-5, 1:16 2-5, 1:42 2-5, 1:48 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SONGSTONE, $8.40, $3.50, $3.20; STILL ALARM, $3.30, $3.00; FLYING AMAZON, $5.30.

SONGSTONE, moving up swiftly on the inside of the leaders when nearing the half-mile pole, had to take command, responded to severe pressure after reaching the home stretch and barely lasted to stall off STILL ALARM. Latter, squeezed back going to the first turn, improved her position readily upon securing racing room, slipped through on the inside of the winner in the final drive and was going the strongest at the finish. FLYING AMAZON, taken wide early, finished with good courage. MAUVE DECADE went strongly for seven furlongs, then weakened. WEDGE LAD was in tight quarters for the first six furlongs, then failed to rally when clear. GRAND KNIGHT began slowly and was outrun. KEYED UP stopped suddenly.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. The Worthington. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates in chute. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:42. Off at 3:44½. Winner, N. W. Church's b. f. (3), by Toro—Viva America. Trained by E. L. Fitzgerald. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:13 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TORO NANCY, $4.40, $3.10, $2.70; NAUTCH, $7.00, $4.20; †MARCELLA MISS, $4.70.

TORO NANCY, away forwardly and racing in close attendance of the leaders, wore NAUTCH down when nearing the home stretch, then came out swiftly approaching the finish. NAUTCH, showing high speed in the footing, raced MARCELLA MISS into submission, but could not stay with the winner when put to a drive. MARCELLA MISS had nice speed and held on gamely after forcing a steady pace. HEADIN HOME worked his way up on the outside and closed full of run. STEWARD was kept on the inside in the softer footing for the entire trip. DOWDY DELL was unable to enter contention. LEGUME was outrun. MOONSON could not menace at any stage.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $900; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:11. Off at 4:13½. Winner, Mrs. W. M. Jeffords' b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GOOD VISIBILITY, $5.20, $3.20, $2.70; MUST BE, $5.90, $4.30; ENERGETIC LADY, $11.00.

GOOD VISIBILITY, slow to get going as usual, went to the outside when improving her position, responded strongly to engage the leaders approaching the home stretch, then wore MUST BE down in the last sixteenth to win under extreme pressure. MUST BE followed SCUDDER closely in the first seven furlongs, took command entering the home stretch, but could not withstand the winner. ENERGETIC LADY tired, resolutely and was wearing the first two down readily. EVENING HOUR weakened during the closing furlong. SCUDDER tired badly in the last five-sixteenths. PETER PEPPER showed disgracefully and would not extend himself under strong handling. COUNTER PASS showed a very dull performance.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:41. Off at 4:42½. Winner, H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WISE ADVOCATE, $7.80, $4.10, $3.10; TREASURY KEY, $4.60, $3.70; RESPECT, $3.70.

WISE ADVOCATE, going alone on his own courage early and favored by the rapid early pace, reached contention midway of the final turn, then disposed of TREASURY KEY easily and came out at will nearing the finish. TREASURY KEY was made too much use of to wear down RED BADGE and she had nothing left when put to a drive. RESPECT outlasted the tiring RED BADGE in the final quarter-mile. RED BADGE was tip-toed to get to the front, then was unable to settle an extremely fast pace. CAPABLANCA was never a factor. FLOWERY LADY was unable to threaten. SYENITE rallied for a brief period at the turn out of the back stretch, then no more. BONNIE DHU was done early.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:11. Off at 5:11½. Winner, Mrs. W. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PATIENT SAINT, $18.00, $9.80, $5.70; SUN ABBOT, $8.50, $5.70; WORTHINGTON, $4.80.

PATIENT SAINT, going strongly and a keen factor in the early racing, disposed of WORTHINGTON to move clear at the final turn, was given a breathing spell entering the home stretch, then came out willingly when shaken up in the last sixteenth. SUN ABBOT reached contention steadily, but could not menace the winner after making a strong bid at the stretch turn. WORTHINGTON was under stout pressure from the beginning and failed to stay when put to a drive. POLITEN could not threaten during the last half-mile. WISHING STAR was messed about for the entire trip after going wide at the first turn. BRIGHT SPIRITS began tiring after seven furlongs. FAIRLY WILD showed speed in spots. INFERNO LAD turned in a dull effort.

Safety Drive On Coast Aims To Douse Glare

California Turns to Auto Light Dangers After Curbing Speeding.

By the United Press.

Sacramento, Calif.—Successful in a drive to curb reckless driving and excessive speeding, the California Highway Patrol now is turning more attention to defective head and tail lights in an effort to reduce accidents.

Once noted throughout the country for its strict laws governing the slant of headlights, California has slipped into the column of States wherein motorists complain about glaring lights, the hazards of night driving, the inconsideration of "the other driver."

Hard to Dim Glare.

Because there is no law compelling motorists to dim their lights or deflect the beams when approaching another car, highway patrolmen can do nothing but check lights for adjustment errors and exceptional glare. And that is difficult because patrolmen cannot very well turn around and chase every car that has glaring lights.

Blinding lights cause many accidents, however, and Chief E. Raymond Cato already has had his men devote a certain part of their time to checking lights.

"It doesn't seem to do a bit of good," he said. "We have checked hundreds of cars, but when you drive out on the highways at night there seems to have been no let-up in the number of machines speeding along with glaring lights.

"Of course, in this day of faster travel, it is necessary to have lights that illuminate a long stretch of the highway. If every one deflected the beams when approaching another car, much of the trouble would be eliminated, but there's no law to force them to do this. Many motorists ignore this evidence of courtesy on the part of the other fellow."

City Co-Operation Urged.

Cato said the patrol needed the co-operation of city police in correcting light troubles. He pointed out that 600 patrolmen could not keep a check on 2,000,000 automobiles.

"People drive around town with their headlight beams deflected," he said. "After a long time in the city they may drive out on the highways, and their high-beam lights, out of adjustment, may be extremely glaring.

"Lights and light bulbs should be checked regularly just as batteries and oil are checked. This would serve to eliminate some of the trouble. People should change bulbs when the filament becomes burned. An ordinary headlight bulb is good for anly 200 hours. If they were changed at intervals there would be fewer 'one-eyed' cars on the road. The same is true of tail lights."

Reports reaching the capitol indicate that California motorists are becoming more and more careless about the courtesies of driving, particularly in regard to deflecting their headlights, keeping well to the right and giving the proper signals for turning and stopping.

Persons returning from trips to other States have reported that upon leaving California they immediately encountered co-operation from approaching cars in the matter of "dimming" lights. Particularly is this noticeable in Arizona and Nevada, after a few hours of night driving in California, according to tourists.

Tightening of restrictions against speeding and reckless driving and the issuing of more citations bore fruit in the form of reduced fatalities. It may be necessary to become more strict in regard to lights, officers believed.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat Off.

THE bombardment of Fort Sumter was, in its way, the most important battle of the Civil War. It came when there was still hope that actual fighting could be averted between the States. But when the first shell broke over Fort Sumter, where Maj. Robert Anderson and a garrison of 128 vainly defended their post, war had begun. There was no longer hope for peace—and to both South and North came the abrupt realization that war was not now a possibility, but a fact.

The next day, April 13, 1861, President Lincoln called for volunteers. Little more than two weeks later another 82,000 were called. In the meantime, operations were started, ports were ordered blockaded. In late July came the first Battle of Bull Run, and with it the promise that a long and bloody war was at hand.

Fort Sumter was no sham battle. Twenty-five hundred shells lit inside the fort, almost demolishing the stronghold. Yet, strange as it seems, this battle, which started the war which cost more American lives than any other, was fought without any bloodshed. No one was killed on either side, no one was even wounded.

Among the many legends of India is the one that a cobra spreads its hood to shield the sleeping Buddha from the sun. Hindus, who called this snake, "the black snake," look upon it as sacred. They refuse to kill it. The snake, protected by superstition, is free to wander and kill at will. About 28,000 people are killed every year by it in India, and an untold amount of property damage is suffered by its attacks on live stock.

King Zog's Rule Is Strengthened As Revolt Fails

Public Sentiment Against Methods Used in Quelling Uprising, However.

By the Associated Press.

Tirana, Albania, Oct. 1/.—The iron-handed suppression of the recent abortive uprising at Fieri, resulting in the assassination of King Zog's adjutant, Gen. Ghilardi, for which 11 gendarmes so far have paid with their lives, has left King Zog more firmly on the throne than before.

Nevertheless a public sentiment, disapproving the methods employed in liquidating the coup, is reported to be growing. Observers said that public feeling is directed chiefly against the minister of the interior, Musa Juka, who is being held responsible for the stern methods and for the arrest of hundreds of persons said to be absolutely unconnected with the plot. Opinion prevails in many quarters that the minister is taking this occasion to eliminate some of his political opponents.

That the government is aware of this growing public sentiment is substantiated by the fact that although the military court at Fieri sentenced 53 persons to death, only 11 of them have been executed. King Zog commuted all but one of the remaining death sentences.

Foreigners of long residence in this country are of the opinion that the execution of the remaining 42 persons, among whom are a number of well-known chieftains and big estate owners, would not only have been the signal for a new uprising but might also have started a large scale blood feud against the regime of King Zog.

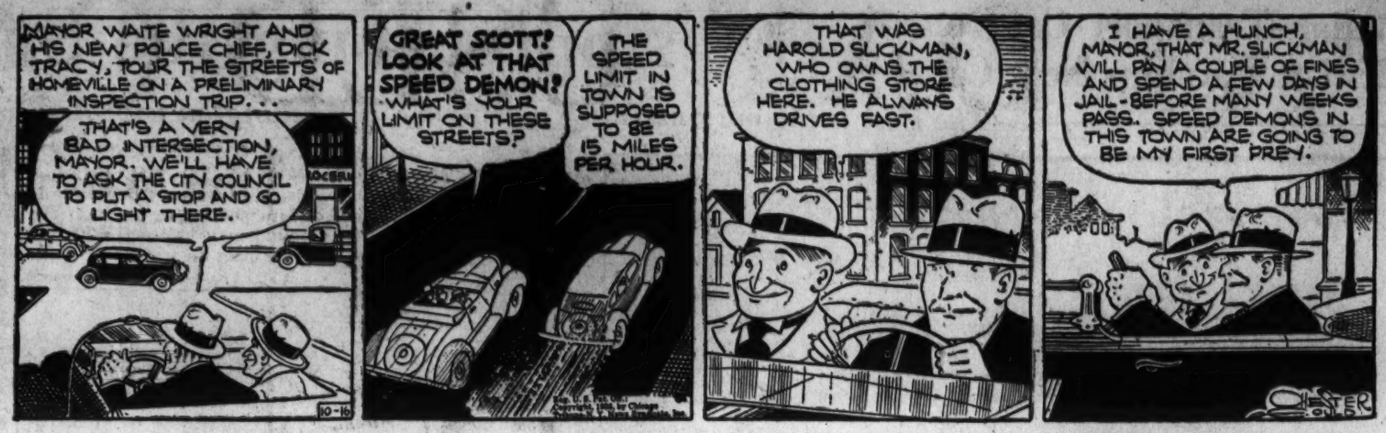
DICK TRACY — Reconnoitering



MAYOR WAITE WRIGHT AND HIS NEW POLICE CHIEF, DICK TRACY, TOUR THE STREETS OF HOMEVILLE ON A PRELIMINARY INSPECTION TRIP. . .
THAT'S A VERY BAD INTERSECTION, MAYOR. WE'LL HAVE TO ASK THE CITY COUNCIL TO PUT A STOP AND GO LIGHT THERE.
GREAT SCOTT! LOOK AT THAT SPEED DEMON! WHAT'S YOUR LIMIT ON THESE STREETS?
THE SPEED LIMIT IN TOWN IS SUPPOSED TO BE 15 MILES PER HOUR.
THAT WAS HAROLD SLICKMAN, WHO OWNS THE CLOTHING STORE HERE. HE ALWAYS DRIVES FAST.
I HAVE A HUNCH, MAYOR, THAT MR. SLICKMAN WILL PAY A COUPLE OF FINES AND SPEND A FEW DAYS IN JAIL - BEFORE MANY WEEKS PASS. SPEED DEMONS IN THIS TOWN ARE GOING TO BE MY FIRST PREY.

GREAT SCOTT! WENT UP HOW MUCH? REPEAT THAT AGAIN!
DID YOU HEAR THAT, OLD DEAR? I JUST CLEANED UP A COOL HALF MILLION ON MY WHEAT HOLDINGS - SINCE YOU'VE BEEN BACK HOME, IT SEEMS LIKE EVERY THING I'VE TOUCHED HAS MADE MONEY -
I'M BEGINNING TO BELIEVE YOU'RE A GOOD LUCK CHARM TO ME, NO LESS - AS LONG AS I HAVE YOU, I CAN'T LOSE - I FEEL IN THE MOOD FOR MAKING YOU A LITTLE GIFT THIS MORNING, MOTHER - TAKE $5,000. AND BUY YOURSELF SOME NEW CLOTHES -
WHY BIMBO - HOW GRAND OF YOU -

Something to Remember Me By

AND ANOTHER $5,000.- ADDED TO WHAT I HAD BEFORE, MAKES A TOTAL OF JUST $10,000.- IF THIS ONLY KEEPS UP, I'LL SOON HAVE EVERYTHING BACK THAT I LOST WHEN THAT OLD SHREW OF A LANDLADY BURNED MY MATTRESS - AND I'LL TAKE NO CHANCES THIS TIME -

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Help! — By Harry J. Tuthill

Sure enough. The heat is bringing out a map on the back of this will and... there's a river. Look.
It says; Follow river to the big rapids. Then strike east 12 miles to circle of big rocks. Dig in exact center.
I wonder...? Oh look! The moment you take it away from the heat the map disappears.
Those diamonds. This will. That map. Jo, we've got something here. The first thing to do is protect ourselves right up to the hilt.
Protect ourselves against what? Me finding a pocketbook on the street doesn't mean it belongs to us. There's a law against that.
You mean the law would wrap us up in a hoosegow just because we're the victims of finding something valuable?
Well, if they're going to get tough and force us to hire a bodyguard of fast-talking lawyers.....
Oh George, why be so mealy-mouthed about something that doesn't belong to us? No sir. I'll see that the owner gets this back.

Bargain—"Blind Dates" at Dime

By the United Press.

Los Angeles, Oct. 15.—A 10 and 25 cent date bureau is open at Occidental College for the service of bashful men and co-eds.

Promising "all transactions in strict confidence," the bureau posts prices of:

Dates with whoever the bureau selects from its "waiting list," 10 cents.

Dates with specified individuals, with whom the applicant presumably is enamored but lacking in courage to approach, 25 cents.

According to a prospectus published in the campus newspaper, the make of automobile, color of hair and eyes, and dancing ability of every customer is to be listed.

Proprietors keep their identity secret, working through student "contact" men.

Eight Playful Goats Get Everybody's Goat

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 15 (U.P.).—Eight goats got everybody's goat and the owner of the goats got Judge Frank A. Magill's goat.

The real goats got in an acrobatic mood and climbed all over the automobiles of the city employes parked near a city dump.

In police court, the owner of the athletic goats, Joe Ross, was ordered to remove them from the city limits in accordance with a city law which prohibits keeping more than two goats.

Have 500 Descendants.

Melbourne, Oct. 15 (U.P.).—Five sisters, whose ages total 352 years, have met for the first time in ten years in Melbourne. Between them they have 500 descendants. The oldest, Mrs. Burke, aged 80, had 12 children, 62 grandchildren and 57 great-grandchildren.

Ohio Shames Iowa.

Bellefontaine, Ohio, Oct. 15 (U.P.).—The corn grew so tall on Tony Fischer's farm this year that it couldn't be put through a mechanical cutting device. Averaging stalks of 14 feet, it had to be done by hand.
